NEWSPAPER HISTORY

The Rockland Gazette was established in 1846. In 1874 the Courier was established, and consolidated with the Gazette in 1882. The Press was established in 1883, and in 1881 changed its name to the Tribune. These papers consolidated March 17, 1897.

BY THE ROCKLAND PUBLISHING CO.

Subscriptions $2 per year in advance; $2.50 if paid at the end of the year; single copies three cents.

Advertising rates based upon circulation and very reasonable. Communications upon topics of general interest are solicited. Entered at the postoffice at Rockland for circulation at second-class postal rates.

"Much as worthy friends add to the happiness and value of life, we must in the main depend on ourselves, and everyone is his own best friend or worst enemy."

Experiments are being conducted in the hopes of perfecting a wireless telephone system. The ordinary wire is probably too "busy" a long while before it is replaced with an invisible one.

Now that the Cape census has been completed we know how many English cousins we have. The population of the British Empire is given as 400,543,713. The Empire contains 11,876,745 square miles.

A despatch from Lincoln, Neb., says that Patrick Raymond, aged 18, was arrested while lighting a cigarette which he had just rolled for his own use in the city streets. He was fined $50 and costs. This is the lightest penalty prescribed by the law for "manufacturing" cigarettes.

W. J. Bryan is a souvenir fiend along with the rest of us. While in Japan he tried to purchase a war stool upon which Admiral Togo sat when he attended the Shinto ceremony in honor of Japan's naval triumph. His offers were refused and the Japanese press has been rebuking his "cheek."

The battleship Virginia on her four hours' endurance run from Monhegan toward Boston made an average speed of 19.01 knots an hour, fulfilling the requirements, but hardly came up to the expectations of the builders, who had hoped she would show a speed of 19.3 knots. The Rhode Island made exactly the same speed as the Virginia on her trial a few weeks ago. The Virginia made the run in 4 hours 12 minutes 44 seconds. The Rhode Island made the same run in 4 hours 12 minutes 44 seconds.

The first and only human imprint ever found in anthracite coal was uncovered by Michael Sincavage, a miner at the Eagle Hill colliery, near Pottsville, Pa., the imprint of a man's foot. Fossils of snakes, ferns, etc., have been plentiful, but this is the first evidence that prehistoric man was in existence in this country during the formation of the coal beds. The imprint, it is estimated, must have been made 10,000 years ago. Sincavage, not appreciating the value of his find, dumped it in an ordinary coal wagon after he had shown it to his fellow miners.

When the intelligent foreigner wants to know on what Americans base their claim of being the "greatest people on earth," he is respectfully referred to the railroad statistics says the Kennebec Journal. The figures recently issued show that the present value of railroad property in the United States is practically equal to that of the entire country in 1860. As compiled for the Baltimore Sun, there were on Dec. 31, 1904, 212,349 miles of railway in the United States, with a total trackage of 293,957 miles. There were 48,558 locomotives, 31,034 passenger cars and 1,728,903 freight cars. The total liabilities were $14,802,000,000, or nearly fifteen billions. Of this sum $6,447,000,000 was stock and $7,645,000,000 bonds and unfunded debt. During the year 716,000,000 passengers and 1,277,000,000 tons of freight were moved. Total earnings were $1,977,000,000; net earnings, $629,240,000. The growth of mileage during the year was 5,014 miles. These figures are stupendous enough to satisfy most people that this country's wealth and power are not ill-founded. The figures are also sufficient to show that we are assured by students of existing conditions that we have hardly made a beginning in developing our wealth and resources.

COLLEGE OF AGRICULTURE.

What Is Being Done in the Farming Line At the University of Maine.

Beginning Jan. 2, 1906, the College of Agriculture of the University of Maine will again provide an eight weeks' course in general farming, animal feeding and breeding, dairying, butter making, orchard and garden work, and the diseases of animals. On March 27th a special three weeks' course in horticulture and poultry management will begin. The greatest need of New England agriculture is to give the most expert practical training that will help them to carry on their farming in a better and more modern way. The Experiment Station is erecting a one and one-half story building which is to be occupied by the man in charge of the poultry. The basement is to be used for an incubator room. Formerly it was necessary to convert part of the Dairy building into an incubator room after the short courses had ended in the winter.

The Experiment Station has shipped about two hundred barred Plymouth Rock cockerels to all parts of this and other states during the past two weeks. Mark H. Wakefield, who finished the School Course last June, has charge of the prize-winning herd of Guernseys at Forge Farm, Plymouth, Mass. Herbert B. Bailey, who finished the same course at that time, is superintendent of Mr. Dingley's farm near Auburn. It is to be regretted that more young men do not take this course because there is a great demand for competent men at good salaries.

Dainty Foods Demand It

IN EVERY Receipt that calls for cream of tartar, soda, or baking powder, use the Royal Baking Powder. Better results will be obtained because of the absolute purity and great leavening strength of the Royal. It will make the food lighter, sweeter, of finer flavor, more digestible and wholesome. It is always reliable and uniform in its work.

Alum and phosphate baking powders—some of them sold at the same price and some of them cheaper—will make neither dainty nor wholesome food.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., NEW YORK.

EGGS ARE WAY UP.

Present Cost of Fresh Ones Is 42 Cents a Dozen—Hard to Get.

Fresh eggs are retailing in the Rockland markets for the highest price they ever brought here at this season of the year, to wit: 42 cents a dozen. It is true that cased eggs can still be bought for 30 cents a dozen, but this is hardly a recomendation to the person who has always subsisted on the real article. Fresh eggs are scarcer than the proverbial hen's teeth. One dealer said he paid 40 cents a dozen for a small lot, yesterday, and was glad to get them at that price. Now is the time for the farmers to coax the biddies to lay.

The primary reason that eggs are high is the fact that this is the moulting season with the hens and they do not lay many eggs during this time, but there are other reasons. For instance, the consumption of eggs is far greater now than ever before. During the time of the great beef famine when meats were so high people took to eating eggs and found as much sustenance in them as in meat. The habit formed at that time has clung to many and eggs are in large demand everywhere.

Many of the eggs used are the cold storage article which come for the greater part from the west. Michigan, Iowa and some of the other central states produce a great number of the eggs in this country. The large packing houses buy up the supply of eggs during the spring and put them into cold storage to sell the next fall. Because of this arrangement eggs will never be as cheap as they used to be when a man could sometimes buy a dozen for 12 cents, as there is always a demand for them either for cold storage or daily consumption.

About the first of December the early pullets will begin to lay but this new supply will probably not affect the price until after the holiday demand is over.

During the whole of last winter the price of eggs did not exceed 40 cents, while now even before Thanksgiving eggs are 42 cents.

MAINE CENTRAL BRIDGE.

What May Happen if Company Decides to Cross Kennebec That Way.

The movement of the Maine Central Railroad Co. to construct a line of road from Wiscasset to some point on the main line between Richmond and Bowdoinham so as to escape ferrying the trains for the Knox & Lincoln branch across the Kennebec river at Bath, is exciting much interest, says an Augusta special. The proposition is to build from Wiscasset to the Kennebec, a distance of ten miles, bridging the river to Abagadasset Point, running from the point to the main line, tapping it about six miles below Richmond and a mile above Bowdoinham.

It is estimated that the cost will be some three-quarters of a million dollars. The route has already been surveyed for the Maine Central by Engineer Frederic Danforth of Gardiner, formerly railroad commissioner. At no point will the grade be over one per cent. As the lay of the land is north and south the construction of the bridge across the Kennebec will involve the construction of numerous bridges and culverts on each side of the river. But the most difficult and expensive section of the line will be the bridge across the Kennebec. The river at Abagadasset Point is a third of a mile wide and the deepest water forty feet. The piers must rest upon a solid foundation. If the river bottom consists of a great thickness of mud it will be unfavorable for bridge building and interfere seriously with the crossing of the river at this place. Men in the employ of the Maine Central have lately been boring into the river bottom to ascertain what it is made of. They will soon report what they find.

If the bridge is built it will have a draw. At one time consideration was given to the project of a bridge at Swan Island, but this was abandoned, as it would necessitate the maintenance of two draws, one on each side of the island. The bridging of the river for the Knox & Lincoln line has been considered by the Maine Central people for several years. At first it was thought to be feasible to locate the bridge just above Bath. But on investigation this was found to involve a great expenditure, if practicable at all. It was ascertained that the water was seventy feet deep, and at the bottom there was about as many more feet of mud. So the Maine Central decided to go further up the river.

It is asserted that there is a crying necessity for the railroad company to provide some way for the crossing of the river without ferrying. The maintenance of the ferry is very expensive, and it is said that the existing arrangement is inadequate. There is a constant growth in the business on the Knox & Lincoln line, and in the summer when the passenger travel is heavy it is sometimes necessary for the ferryboat to make two trips in transporting one train. It is said that if the ferry is continued and business keeps growing it will be necessary to construct a larger steamer which would involve the rebuilding and widening of the slips. It is necessary to maintain two crews of men for the ferrying, a day crew and a night crew. Also to employ two captains and four engineers. Then there is the delay, as it takes time to get the trains across.

The distance by Abagadasset Point from Wiscasset to Brunswick will be less than two miles further than via Bath. It is estimated that at least half an hour in time will be saved. While the citizens of Bath have been vigorously opposing the project, in Kennebec county there is a strong sentiment in its favor. Many Kennebec county people make their summer homes at the delightful Boothbay Harbor resorts. Now that the Wiscasset bridge is being rebuilt there is talk of a new trolley line between Wiscasset and the town of Boothbay Harbor. It is believed that by the trolley and the new Maine Central road citizens of Augusta could easily reach the harbor in two hours, while now four or five hours is required. Thus a person could leave Augusta in the morning, have six or eight hours at the harbor and return in good season at night. The running time between Augusta and Rockland would also be reduced.

A citizen of Wiscasset expresses rosy views as to what the new line across the Kennebec would do for his town. He had an idea that it would oblige the Eastern Steamship Co. to have a boat between Bath and Wiscasset and add materially to the summer resort business of his section.

In Time of Peace.

In the first months of the Russia-Japan war we had a striking example of the necessity for preparation and the early advantage of those who, so to speak, "have slunged the rocks in dry weather." The virtue of preparation has made history and given to us our greatest men. The individual as well as the nation should be prepared for any emergency. Are you prepared to successfully combat the first cold you take. A cold can be cured much more quickly when treated as soon as it has been contracted and before it becomes settled in the system. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is famous for its cures of colds and it should be kept at hand ready for instant use. For sale at W. H. Kittredge's and C. H. Pendleton's Drug stores.

YOUR FAVORITE POEM

A Psalm For Thanksgiving Day.

O thou whose boundless love bestows
The joy of life, the hope of hours;
Thou whose unchartered mercy flows
O'er all the blessings thou hast given;
Thou by whose light alone we see;
Thou by whose truth our souls set free
Are made imperishably strong;
Hear thou the solemn music of our song.
Grant us the knowledge that we need
To solve the questions of the mind;
Light thou our candle while we tread
The shadowy path of life's blind
And keep our hearts from going blind;
Enlarge our vision to behold
The wonders thou hast wrought of old;
Reveal thyself in every law
And gild the towers of truth with holy awe.
Be thou our strength when war's wild gust
Rages around us, loud and fierce;
Confirm our souls and let our trust
Be like a wall that none can pierce;
Give us the courage that prevails,
The steady faith that never fails,
Help us to stand in every fight
Firm as a fortress to defend the right.
O God, make of us what thou wilt;
Guide thou the labor of our hands;
Let all our work be surely built
As thou, the architect, hast planned;
But whatever thy power shall make
Of these frail lives, do not forsake
Thy dwelling. Let thy presence rest
For ever in the temple of our breast.
—Henry Van Dyke, in The Builders.

There will be Thanksgiving service at Rockville Thursday evening led by the pastor, Rev. W. P. Richardson. All are cordially invited.

The rehearsal of Wight Philharmonic Society will be held on Thursday evening as usual. There will be no omission on account of the holiday.

Henry V. Starrett, "the Maine Register man," has been in the city for a few days making his revision and soliciting advertisements for the 1906 edition.

Charles W. Snow of Spruce Head has been elected class poet of the junior class at Bowdoin college. Neil Doherty of Rockland is a member of the Ivy Day committee.

An East Union farmer shipped a case of eggs to Boston last week and received 48 cents a dozen for them. Eggs are costing something in Boston nowadays, to say nothing of Rockland.

The Executive Committee of the Knox County Teachers' Association will meet this Tuesday evening at 7 o'clock with Miss Martha May, 23 Grove street. A full attendance of the committee is desired.

H. L. Higgins is doing a thriving scallop business this fall. He has secured a large number of scallops and is sending to the Boston and New York markets from twenty-five to fifty gallons of these delicious bivalves every day.

There is to be a hearing in probate court today on the petition of D. N. Mortland and R. I. Thompson for the appointment of a special administrator upon the James Farnsworth estate because of the delay of granting letters of administration.

A. J. Huston has leased the store formerly occupied by the North National Bank for the holiday season. Mr. Huston has such a tremendous stock he found himself cramped in his store on the other side of the street. The interior of the main store is being touched up with paint.

The members of Golden Rod Chapter, O. E. S., are still calling on their neighbors. This Tuesday evening, they will accompany Sister Bertha E. McCreary, D. D. G. M., to Waldoboro upon her official visit to Wiwuna Chapter. A special train over the Maine Central has been chartered leaving Rockland at 6:30 p. m., returning from Waldoboro about midnight. It is expected that at least 100 members will go. "All aboard! Next station Waldoboro."

For the Thanksgiving attraction Manager Crockett offers the ever popular and entertaining Shepard's Moving Pictures. A program made up of the best of everything in the motion picture, including beautiful new dramatic productions, excellent comedies, situations, startling feats of magic and interesting travel pictures, as well as several new sensational dramatic and historical events, will be presented. An effort will be made to make this one of the most enjoyable moving picture performances ever seen in this city.

Two performances, at 3 and 8:15 p. m. In a sermon on "The Sturgis Commission and the Enforcement of the Prohibitory Law," Rev. E. H. Chapin told his congregation Sunday evening that the commission was in no sense a failure. It hadn't done everything we would like, but it had demonstrated that the law could be enforced. Mr. Chapin expressed the belief that Sheriff Tolman was enforcing the law to the best of his ability, but there were some spots in the county because the sheriff's deputies are delinquent. He said that Marshal Fernald had done his part in enforcing the law and there were less than a dozen cases remaining in this city than there used to be. Of course it could not be denied that liquor was still sold here. Those who believe in enforcement were urged to support the men who were endeavoring to do it.

The N. A. Burpee Hose Co. will give its twenty-first annual concert and gift ball at Willoughby hall, on Thanksgiving evening, next Thursday, and lots of attractive features are announced. The gift feature will be of unusual interest, as 177 presents, valued at $24, are to be given away to the patrons of the entertainment. Messervy's quintet has been engaged to furnish the music, which will be of the best. A prize cake-walk is announced. Chief Engineer John A. Karl will be floor manager, and the assistant engineers and members of the company will act as aids. The Burpee ball has for many years been the great feature of Thanksgiving in Rockland, being always held on that holiday, and nobody ever attended without having a good time. The tickets are now on sale by members of the company.

Mrs. Silas Morton is confined to her home on Cedar street with a broken leg, the result of a fall last week.

George Perrow, coachman for W. S. White, sustained a fractured wrist Saturday evening as the result of a collision with another vehicle.

Harry Sanborn, S. W. Dyer and "Mansy" Mansfield of Vinalhaven were in the city Saturday on their way to Lincoln on a two week's gunning trip.

The Rockland high school football team was to have played Castine Saturday, but it is reported that Principal Moulton caused the game to be canceled because the ground was too hard.

C. M. Walker has bought the house on Frederick street which has been owned and occupied by Edward E. Bishop. It is understood that Mr. Bishop will return to his old home in Millinocket.

The annual meeting or convocation of the Rockland Chapter, E. T. will be held next Monday night. The reports of the treasurer, recorder and financial committee will be presented and officers will be elected.

Rain or shine Pomona Grange will be held in West Rockport Dec. 8. There is to be no postponement on account of weather. The forthcoming Pomona will be the annual session at which officers are to be elected.

In another column of this paper will be found a complete list of the local attractions for Thanksgiving Eve and Thanksgiving Day, together with other interesting matter pertaining to this popular holiday.

It may interest many of our readers to know that a new time table went into effect on the Northern Maine Seaport Railroad yesterday. Passenger service has been established and there will be two trains daily over the new road in each direction.

The yacht in the window of the corner store of the Norcross Drug Co. is one of the valuable presents to be given away by Edwin Libby Post at the annual drawing next Tuesday. It was made by Frank Wardwell, and would set some youngster wild with delight.

Somebody playing the ghost act frightened some women on Frederick street Sunday night, and the patrol wagon was sent to that locality. The Star's "wireless" must have been working for the wagon returned empty and the big crowd which surrounded the act waiting for some kind of a sensation, faded quietly away.

The first annual ball of the Rockland police force is to be given in Willoughby hall New Year's night. The suggestion has often been made to "do the finest" that they do something of the sort, and they have at last consented to make their appearance before the public in a new role. It goes without saying that this ball will be a success.

John Dan Shepherd and Charles W. Halstead of local minstrel fame, are to figure prominently in two minstrel entertainments to be given by the Hyde Light Guards of Bath this week. The first entertainment will be at Boothbay Harbor Wednesday night, and the second in Bath Thanksgiving night.

Mr. Shepherd will be one of the end men, while Messrs. Shepherd and Halstead will do their famous dance. Samuel Gompers has been re-elected president of the American Federation of Labor by a practically unanimous vote. When in Rockland this summer Mr. Gompers was elected to the position of candidate for re-election. He replied that it rested with the delegates to say who the next president should be. The results show that the veteran leader has a strong hold as never with the great labor organization which he represents.

Edward B. Burpee of the law firm of Cilley & Burpee returned last week from New York, where he took a prominent part in that city's sensational municipal campaign. For two weeks he was on the stump, speaking in various parts of the Metropolis, with Ivins, the republican candidate for mayor or Jerome, the independent candidate for district attorney. Everybody who read the New York newspapers knows something about the exciting details of those meetings. Mr. Burpee says that Mr. Ivins accepted his defeat very gracefully. It was apparent to the candidate as it was to almost everybody else that the Republican managers had no thought of electing their ticket and that their part in the campaign was hardly more than a formality. In spite of this Mr. Ivins made a splendid campaign and was acknowledged on all sides to be the most fitting candidate for mayor. Many Republicans chose to cast their prominent part in that city's sensational municipal campaign.

It was apparent to the candidate as it was to almost everybody else that the Republican managers had no thought of electing their ticket and that their part in the campaign was hardly more than a formality. In spite of this Mr. Ivins made a splendid campaign and was acknowledged on all sides to be the most fitting candidate for mayor. Don't forget the Burps next Thursday night. They will be found at the Willoughby.

This week finds many boys and girls home from college to partake of the Thanksgiving turkey.

The Rockland Fish Co. have had a new office built, their plant on Sea street and Manager Donohue now has plenty of room in which to move around and entertain friends.

The members of The Courier-Gazette staff are among the 160 friends whom James Donohue has invited for a venison since his return from Camp Nick. May James' shadow never grow less.

The yacht Undine, owned by Frank Wardwell, Capt. Israel Stearns and Capt. Ned Davies—otherwise known as the Syndicate, was hailed up for the winter at Camden Saturday. She was taken thither by Mr. Wardwell.

J. W. Walker, piano tuner, writes the Courier-Gazette that he is planning to reach Rockland about Christmas and will make headquarters at the Lindsey House. The "champion" will bring a new desk and hopes to hold the bell for 1906.

Union Thanksgiving services will be held in the Universalist church Wednesday evening, Nov. 29, at 7:30 o'clock. Rev. Robert Sutcliffe, pastor of the Methodist church will preach the sermon. The choir of the several churches will assist in the services.

Eugene McLaren of Rockport was in the city yesterday and disposed of his lobster boat to A. C. McLean & Co. Mr. McLaren and family leave the last of the week for Manitoba, where Mr. McLaren expects to find employment with a detective agency. His brother being the employer there in that capacity for some time.

While Mrs. A. C. McLean and Mrs. William W. Spear were driving on Broadway Friday afternoon, the horse took fright and bolted. Mrs. McLean threw a new dress overboard, but Mrs. Spear clung to the seat until the horse swerved into the yard of Capt. Lucien Keen when the wagon was overturned with Mrs. Spear beneath. Strangely enough neither lady received injuries of a serious nature.

At the annual encampment of the Department of Maine, G. A. R., to be held next June there are to be several candidates for the position of department commander. For years the encampment has been held in February, but last year it was voted to change to the month of June. There is likely to be a lively contest to succeed Capt. H. O. Perry of Port Fairfield, Frederick S. Walls of Vinalhaven and L. C. Bateman of Lewiston who are candidates a year ago, are mentioned, and in addition, Frank E. Coombs of Lewiston and Edward Riley of Livermore Falls.

The Board of Management of the Home for Aged Women in Rockland, wish to express their gratitude to the friends of the Home, that the seal needed there is an assured thing for this year. Among the friends who have ordered a ton sent are found the names of Congressman Littlefield, A. D. Bird, Jarvis C. Perry, Robert H. Crockett, John St. John, Richard Stearns, G. L. Farrand, and also the gift of a ton from all the older members of the Bird family and a ton sent by Mrs. Clara C. Black, who was one of the many of the ladies on the Board of Management. This is a great relief to those having the care there to know that the inmates, whose only home it is, will be warm and comfortable during what may be a severe winter.

The police ambulance came down Spring street Saturday afternoon and sailed away north, presumably in pursuit of a "drunk." Arriving at the Brook it stopped and a number of policemen who were quickly divided into squads and swooped down upon two places where it seemed quite positive that liquor was being sold. The new thing to entertain that suspicion, or even belief, but quite another thing to catch a weasel asleep. In all of the six saloons searched by the police Saturday afternoon they were every inch the same. The Sturgis law had lost none of its terrors; anyhow the saloon keepers lost none of their liquors. The raid was well planned and swiftly executed, but the men who are still in the rum business were not born yesterday.

The Universalist Mission Circle held its first winter meeting at the home of Mrs. Chapin, last Friday afternoon. The topic "The Universalist Church and its Future" was presented in a very interesting manner by Miss Flora Wise. After giving statistics showing the numerical strength of the church, the members of the circle were in the vanguard of the different State and General Conventions and its several schools and colleges. Miss Wise proceeded to its present aims and outlook. In a recent article on the "corner stone" of the Universalist General Convention, the Religious editor of the Boston Transcript, a Congregationalist by the way, says: "Few denominations in recent years have developed so much denominational consciousness as have the Universalist churches. They have become a compact, purposeful body."

This is the more remarkable in view of the fact that they are no longer needed to champion the peculiar tenet with which Universalism is identified. Not that the orthodox denominations have given up the doctrine of future punishment, but the center of theological strife has shifted, and there is today, at least in New England, very little of that lurid setting forth of future retributions which used to be the most prominent feature of the Universalist churches. They have become a compact, purposeful body.

New Drug Firm Succeeds W. J. Coakley—
Takes Charge Thursday

An announcement which created a great deal of interest in Rockland business circles yesterday was to the effect that the drug store of John W. Coakley, opposite the Thorndike hotel, had been sold to Charles M. Titus and Cyrus W. Hills. The new firm will do business under the name of Titus & Hills and will take possession of the store on the morning of Thanksgiving day, which ought to be an auspicious beginning.

The store is one of the most centrally located establishments in the city being especially convenient for transient trade whether coming by rail or by stage. The store has been in the hands of Mr. Coakley 20 years ago the coming January and has always been regarded as an excellent stand. Mr. Coakley's future intentions are as yet uncertain but they fortunately do not involve his leaving the city. He is a half owner of the block in which the drug store is located.

The young men comprising the new firm are two of the city's most popular and reliable young men, both of whom have had experience in the apothecary business. Mr. Titus is a son of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Coakley and his first employment in a drug store dates back 12 years to the time when he was a clerk for Dickmore & Bramhall. He has since clerked for W. C. Pooler, was one year with James E. Divine in Augusta, and for the last three years has been with the Norcross Drug Co. During the last 15 months he has been manager of the "corner store."

He is a registered druggist, having been admitted a year ago last October after the rigid examination which all applicants are now called upon to pass. Mr. Titus is a past captain of Anderson Camp, Sons of Veterans and is a member of the Knights of Pythias lodge. Cyrus W. Hills is a son of Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Hills. He has had three years' experience in the drug business, having been employed part of that time in the Donohue drug store. During the past two years he has been a local agent for the Mutual Life Insurance Co., a position which he now relinquishes.

The young men will doubtless build up a very fine business. They have an excellent stand, plenty of stock and ability, and many friends.

Brewster's Millions

Copyright, 1904, By GEORGE BARR M'UTCHEON (RICHARD GRAVES)

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I.—A supper in honor of the twenty-fifth birthday of Montgomery Brewster, grandson and heir of Edwin Brewster, millionaire, is interrupted by the announcement of old Mr. Brewster's death.

CHAPTER II.—He is invited to dinner by Colonel Drew.

CHAPTER III.—Monty offers to aid Mrs. Gray and Peggy, his foster mother and foster sister. He receives a letter from Grant & Ripley, lawyers, telling him that the fortune of his uncle, James Sedgwick of Montana, has been left to him. Mr. Sedgwick Jones is executor of the Sedgwick will.

CHAPTER IV.—Brewster is informed that the Sedgwick fortune is left to him on condition that on his twenty-sixth birthday, Sept. 23 of the following year, he be absolutely penniless. The conditions forbid him to give away or loan any money, but to keep "this money's worth." The Sedgwick fortune amounts to more than $6,000,000.

CHAPTER V.—Brewster is forbidden to take anyone into his confidence. He believes himself in love with Barbara Drew, daughter of Col. Drew. Mr. Jones, in Montana, states the conditions under which Monty is to dispose of the Brewster money. Brewster employs his friends to help him get rid of the million.

VII.—Brewster makes friends with Mrs. DeMille, a society leader. He gives a magnificent dinner, after which the glass ceiling screen falls on the table, ruining it.

VIII.—Brewster whips a newspaper man who sneers at him and Miss Drew. IX.—Brewster bets on a prize fight, hoping to lose. He tells Miss Drew he loves her, but gets no decided reply. His prize fight wagers prove winners.

X.—Brewster decides to invest in Lumber and Fuel, a failing stock; his partner sends it up, and he makes $58,000.

XI.—An auto accident costs Brewster $14,000. He has a quarrel with Barbara. Highwaymen take Brewster's money and valuables.

XII.—Monty refuses to identify one of the robbers and reforms him. Brewster and Mrs. DeMille plan a ball. Miss Drew returns his advances, saying she loves him. Brewster loses $100,000 in a bank failure. He saves Colonel Drew from financial disaster, the conditions of his aid being that Barbara be not told.

XIV.—At Miss Drew's cotillion Brewster makes love to her. He is repulsed and breaks finally with her.

XV.—Brewster is taken ill with appendicitis, and the ball is called off. Brewster is operated on and is nursed by Peggy.

XVI.—Brewster's friends go with him to Florida. Peggy tries to reconcile Monty and Barbara.

XVII.—Back to New York. Brewster's ball costs him much money. His friend, "Nipper" Harrison, confesses to having lost $60,000 of Brewster's money. He is forgiven and sent west.

XVIII.—Brewster still has over $500,000 to spend. He takes twenty-five guests to Europe on a steam yacht.

XIX.—X and the Brewster yacht is wrecked on the Rivera coast. A flower lady on the Rivera costs Monty several thousands. He wins $40,000 at Monte Carlo.

XXI.—XXII.—Much money is spent in Italy. Peggy chides Brewster for spending so much.

XXIII.—At Alexandria a sheik falls in love with Peggy.

XXIV.—Peggy pretends to accept the sheik's proposal. Brewster repulses the sheik, who returns to the yacht and carries off Peggy. Brewster's men pursue, and a threat by the sheik to shoot is followed by the sheik's counter threat to kill Peggy.

XXV.—XXVI.—Peggy is rescued by the sailor whom Brewster saved. Brewster decides to sail the yacht for North Cape. His friends balk at the expense. He says he will go alone.

CHAPTER XXVII.

"NOW will you be good?" cried Reggie Vanderpool to DeMille as Monty went down the companionway. The remark was precisely what was needed, for the pent up feelings of the entire company were poured forth upon the unfortunate young man. Subway Smith was for hanging him to the yardarm, and the denunciation of the others was so decisive that Reggie sought refuge in the chart house. But the atmosphere had been materially cleared, and the leaders of the mutiny were in a position to go into executive session and consider the matter. The women waited on deck while the meeting lasted. They were unanimous in the opinion that the affair had been badly managed.

"They should have offered to stay by the ship provided Monty would let Mr. DeMille manage the cruise," said Miss Valentine. "That would have been a concession, and at the same time it would have put the cruise on an economical basis."

"In other words, you will accept a man's invitation to dinner if he will allow you to order food and invite the other guests," said Peggy, who was quick to defend Monty.

"Well, that would be better than helping to eat up every bit of food he possessed." But Miss Valentine always avoided argument when she could and gave this as a parting thrust before she walked away.

"There must be something more than we know about in Monty's extravagance," said Mrs. Dan. "He isn't the kind of man to squander his last penny without having something left to show for it. There must be method in his madness."

"He has done it for us," said Peggy. "He has devoted himself all along to giving us a good time, and now we are showing our gratitude."

Further discussion was prevented by the appearance of the conspiring committee, and the whole company was summoned to hear DeMille's report as chairman.

"We have found a solution of our difficulties," he began. And his manner was so jubilant that every one became hopeful. "It is desperate, but I think it will be effective. Monty has given us the privilege of leaving the yacht at any port where we can take a steamer to New York. Now, my suggestion is that we select the most convenient place for all of us, and obviously there is nothing quite so convenient as Boston."

"Dan DeMille, you are quite foolish," cried his wife. "Who ever conceived such a ridiculous idea?"

"Captain Perry has his instructions," continued DeMille, turning to the captain. "He is not acting along the lines marked out by Brewster himself?"

"I will sail for Boston if you say the word," said the thoughtful captain. "But he is sure to countermand such an order."

"He won't be able to, captain!" cried Subway Smith, who had for some time been eager to join in the conversation. "This is a genuine, dyed in the wool mutiny, and we expect to carry out the original plan, which was to put Mr. Brewster in irons until we were safe from all opposition."

"He is my friend, Mr. Smith, and at least it is my duty to protect him from any indignity," said the captain stily. "You make for Boston, my dear captain, and we'll do the rest," said DeMille. "Mr. Brewster can't countermand your orders unless he sees you in person. We'll see to it that he has no chance to talk to you until we are in sight of Boston harbor."

The captain looked doubtful and shook his head as he walked away. At heart he was with the mutineers, and his mind was made up to assist them as long as it was possible to do so without violating his obligations to Brewster. He felt guilty, however, in surreptitiously giving the order to clear for Boston at daylight. The chief officers were let into the secret, but the sailors were kept in darkness regarding the destination of the Flitter.

Montgomery Brewster's guests were immensely pleased with the scheme, although they were dubious about the outcome. Mrs. Dan regretted her last comment on the plan and entered into the plot with eagerness. In accordance with plans decided upon by the mutineers, Monty's stateroom door was guarded through the night by two of the men. The next morning as he emerged from his room he was met by Subway Smith and Dan DeMille.

"Good morning," was his greeting. "How's the weather today?"

"Bully," answered DeMille. "By the way, you are going to have breakfast in your room, old man."

Brewster unsuspectingly led the way into his stateroom, the two following.

"What's the mystery?" he demanded. "We've been deputized to do some very nasty work," said Subway, who turned the key in the door. "We are here to tell you what port we have chosen."

"It's awfully good of you to tell me," said Brewster. "But we have studied up on the chivalrous treatment of prisoners. We have decided on Boston."

"There's a Boston on this side of the water?" asked Monty in mild surprise. "No; there is only one Boston in the universe, so far as we know. It is a large body of intellect surrounded by the rest of the world."

"What are you talking about? You don't mean Boston, Mass.?" cried Monty, looking to his feet.

"Precisely. That's the port for us, and you told us to choose for ourselves," said Smith.

"Well, I won't have it, that's all!" exclaimed Brewster indignantly. "Captain Perry takes orders from me and from no one else."

"He already has his orders," said DeMille, smiling mysteriously. "I'll see about that."

Brewster sprang to the door. It was locked, and the key was in Subway Smith's pocket. With an impatient exclamation he turned and pressed an electric button.

"I won't ring, Monty," explained Subway. "The wire has been cut. Now, be cool for a minute or two and we'll talk it over."

Brewster stormed for five minutes, the "delegation" sitting calmly by, smiling with exasperating confidence. At last he calmed down and in terms of reason demanded an explanation.

He was given to understand that the yacht would sail for Boston and that he would be kept a prisoner for the entire voyage unless he submitted to the will of the majority.

Brewster listened darkly to the proclamation. He saw that they had gained the upper hand by a clever ruse and that only strategy on his part could outwit them. He was out of the question for him to submit to them now that the controversy had assumed the dignity of a struggle.

"But you will be reasonable, won't you?" said DeMille anxiously. "I intend to fight it out to the bitter end," said Brewster, his eyes flashing. "At present I am your prisoner, but it is a long way to Boston."

For three days and two nights the Flitter steamed westward into the Atlantic, with her temporary owner locked in his stateroom. The confinement was irksome, but he rather liked the sensation of being interested in something besides money. He frequently laughed to himself over the absurdity of the situation. His enemies were

JOYS OF MATERNITY

A WOMAN'S BEST HOPES REALIZED

Mrs. Potts Tells How Women Should Prepare for Motherhood

The darkest days of husband and wife are when they come to look forward to childless and lonely old age. Many a wife has found herself incapable of motherhood owing to a displacement of the womb or lack of strength in the generative organs.

Mrs. Anna Potts

Frequent backache and distressing pains, accompanied by offensive discharges and generally by irregular and scanty menstruation indicate a displacement or nerve degeneration of the womb and surrounding organs.

The question that troubles women is how can a woman who has some female trouble bear healthy children? Mrs. Anna Potts, of 510 Park Avenue, Hot Springs, Ark., writes:

My Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—I was delicate in health; both my husband and I were very anxious for a child to bless our home, but I had two miscarriages, and could not carry a child to maturity. A neighbor who had been cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound advised me to try it. I did so and soon felt that I was growing stronger, my headaches and backaches left me, I had more bearing-down pains, and felt like a new woman. Within a year I became the mother of a strong, healthy child, the joy of our home. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is certainly a splendid remedy, and I wish every woman who wants to become a mother would try it.

Actual sterility in woman is very rare. If any woman who she is sterile, let her try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and write to Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass. Her advice is free to expectant or would-be mothers.

friends, true and devoted; his jailers were restless, but they were considerate. The original order that he should be guarded by one man was violated on the first day. There were times when his guard numbered at least ten persons and some of them served tea and begged him to listen to reason.

"It is difficult not to listen," he said fiercely. "It is like holding a man down and asking him to be quiet. But my time is coming."

"Revenge will be his!" exclaimed Mrs. Dan tragically.

"You might have your term shortened on account of good conduct if you would only behave," suggested Peggy, whose reserve was beginning to soften.

"Please be good and give in," said Monty. "I haven't been happier during the whole cruise," said Monty. "On deck I wouldn't be noticed, but here I am quite the whole thing. Besides I can get out whenever I feel like it."

"I have $1,000 which says you can't," said DeMille, and Monty snapped him up so eagerly that he added, "that you can't get out of your own accord."

Monty agreed to the condition and offered odds on the proposition to the others, but there were no takers. "That settles it," he smiled grimly to himself. "I can make $1,000 by staying here, and I can't afford to escape."

On the third day of Monty's imprisonment the Flitter began to roll heavily. At night he glared over the discomfort of his guards, who obviously did not like to stay below. Subway Smith and Bragdon were on duty and neither was famous as a good sailor. When Monty lit his pipe there was consternation, and Subway rushed on deck.

"You are a brave man, Joe," Monty said to the steward and blew a cloud of smoke in his direction. "I knew you would stick to your post. You wouldn't leave it even if the ship should go down."

Monty blew a cloud of smoke in his direction.

Bragdon had reached the stage where he dared not speak and was busying himself trying to "breathe with the motion of the boat, as he had called it."

"By Jove," continued Monty relentlessly. "This smoke is getting thick. Some of this toilet water might help if I sprinkled it about."

One whiff of the sweet smelling cologne was enough for Bragdon, and he bolted up the companionway, leaving the stateroom door wide open and the prisoner free to go where he pleased. Monty's first impulse was to follow, but he checked himself on the threshold.

"Hang that bet with DeMille!" he said to himself, and added aloud to the fleeing guard, "The key, Joe—I dare you to come back and get it!"

But Bragdon was beyond recall and Monty locked the door on the inside and passed the key through the ventilator.

On deck a small part of the company braved the spray in the lee of the deck house, but the others had long since gone below. The boat was pitching furiously in the ugliest sea it had encountered, and there was anxiety and domineering Captain Perry's mask of unconcern. DeMille and Dr. Lotless talked in the senseless way men have when they try to conceal their nervousness. But the women did not respond; they were in no mood for conversation.

Only one of them was quite oblivious to personal discomfort and danger. Peggy Gray was thinking of the prisoner below. In a reflection of her own terror she pictured him crouching in the little stateroom like a doomed criminal awaiting execution, alone, neglected, forgotten, unpitied. At first she pleaded with the men for his release, but they insisted upon waiting in the hope that a scare might bring him to his senses. Peggy saw that no help was to be secured from the other women, much as they might care for Brewster's peace of mind and safety. Her heart was bitter toward every one responsible for the situation, and there was dark rebellion in her soul. It culminated finally in a resolve to release Monty Brewster at any cost.

With difficulty she made her way to the stateroom door, clinging to supports at times and then plunging violently away from them. For some minutes she listened, frantically clutching Brewster's door and the wall rail. There was no guard, and the tumult of the sea drowned every sound within. Her imagination ran riot when her repeated calls were not answered.

"Monty, Monty!" she cried, pounding wildly on the door.

"Who is it? What is the trouble?" came in muffled tones from within, and Peggy breathed a prayer of thanks. Just then she discovered the key which Monty had dropped and quickly opened the door, expecting to find him cowering with fear. But the picture was different. The prisoner was seated on the divan, propped up with many pillows and reading with the aid of an electric light "The Intrusions of Peggy."

CHAPTER XXVIII.

"H" was Peggy's only exclamation, and there was a shadow of disappointment in her eyes.

"Come in, Peggy, and I'll read aloud," was Monty's cheerful greeting as he stood before her.

"No; I must go," said Peggy confusedly. "I thought you might be nervous about the storm—and"

"And you came to let me out?" Monty had never been so happy.

"Yes, and I don't care what the others say. I thought you were suffering—"

But at that moment the boat gave a lurch which threw her across the deck and into Monty's arms. They crashed against the main cabin bulkhead, and he held her for a moment and forgot the storm. When she drew away from him she showed him the open door and freedom. She could not speak.

"Where are the others?" he asked, bracing himself in the doorway.

"Oh, Monty," she cried, "we must not go to them! They will think me a traitor."

"Why were you a traitor, Peggy?" he demanded, turning toward her suddenly.

"Oh—oh, because it seemed so cruel to keep you locked up through the storm," she answered, blushing.

"And there was no other reason?" he persisted.

"Don't, please don't!" she cried pitifully, and he misunderstood her emotion. It was clear that she was merely sorry for him.

"Never mind, Peggy, it's all right. You stood by me, and I'll stand by you. Come on; we'll face the mob, and I'll do the fighting."

Together they made their way into the presence of the mutineers, who were crowded into the main cabin.

"Well, here's a conspiracy!" cried Dan DeMille, but there was no anger in his voice. "How did you escape? I was just thinking of unlocking your door, Monty, but the key seemed to be missing."

Peggy displayed it triumphantly. "My goodness!" cried Dan. "This is rank treachery. Who was on guard?"

A steward rushing through the cabin at this moment in answer to frantic calls from Bragdon furnished an eloquent reply to the question.

"It was simple," said Monty. "The guards deserted their post and left the key behind."

"Then it is up to me to pay you $1,000."

"Not at all," protested Monty, taken aback. "I did not escape of my own accord. I had help. The money is yours. And now that I am free," he added quietly, "let me say that your boat does not go to Boston."

"Just what I expected!" cried Vanderpool.

"She's going straight to New York!" declared Monty. The words were hardly uttered when a heavy sea sent him sprawling across the cabin, and he concluded, "or to the bottom."

"Not so bad as that," said Captain Perry, whose entrance had been somewhat hastened by the lurch of the boat. "But until this blows over I must leave you below." He laughed, but he saw they were not deceived. "The seas are pretty heavy and the decks are being hoisted for nothing, but I wouldn't like to have any of you washed overboard by mistake."

The decks were battened down, and it was a sorry company that tried to while away the evening in the main cabin. Monty's chiding about the advantages of the North Cape over the stormy Atlantic was not calculated to raise the drooping spirits, and it was very early when he and his shattered guests turned in. There was little sleep on board the Flitter that night. Even if it had been easy to forget the danger, the creaking of the ship and the incessant roar of the water were enough for wakefulness. With each lurch of the boat it seemed more incredible that it could endure. It was such a mile of a thing to meet so furious an attack. Through the night the fragile little craft fought its lonely way, bravely ignoring its own weakness.

ness and the infinite strength of its enemy. To the captain, lashed to the bridge, there were hours of grave anxiety—hours when he feared each wave as it approached and wondered what new damage it had done as it receded. As the wind increased toward morning he felt a sickening certainty that the brave little boat was beaten. Somehow she seemed to lose courage, to waver a bit and almost give up the fight. He watched her miserably as the dismal dawn came up out of the sea. Yet it was not until 7 o'clock that the crash came which shook the passengers out of their berths and filled them with shivering terror. The whirling of the broken shaft seemed to consume the ship. In every cabin it spoke with horrible vividness of disaster. The clamor of voices and the rush of many feet which followed meant but one thing. Almost instantly the machinery was stopped—an ominous silence in the midst of the dull roar of the water and the cry of the wind.

It was a terrified crowd that quickly gathered in the main cabin, but it was a brave one. There were no cries and few tears. They expected anything and were ready for the worst, but they would not show the white feather. It was Mrs. Dan who broke the tension. "I made sure of my pearls," she said. "I thought they would be appreciated at the bottom of the sea."

Brewster came in upon their laughter. "I like your nerve, people!" he exclaimed. "You are all right. It won't be so bad now. The wind has dropped."

"NEVER MORE HOPEFUL."

Says Commissioner Nickerson In Regard To The Lobster Outlook.

Hon. A. R. Nickerson, commissioner of sea and shore fisheries, says that the lobster industry of Maine was never in a more hopeful condition, and this statement is made in the face of the frequent news to the effect that the waters are rapidly being depleted of this crustacean.

In his opinion, if the laws in regard to the catching and fishing of lobsters are properly observed, there is no reason why Maine should not supply the country with all reasonable demands for this green-shelled native of the North Atlantic seaboard. The fishermen of the state found and disposed of more than 8,000,000 of them in 1904, and while at present it appears that the record for this year will be about 500,000 below that amount, the lessened production being due principally to local causes, and 1906 promises to show a larger catch than the first mentioned period.

Two causes contribute principally to this eminently satisfactory situation of affairs. One is the fast growing recognition of the advisability of enforcing the short lobster law, and the other is found in the excellent results accruing from the statutory provision permitting the commissioner or his agents to purchase from fishermen egg-bearing lobsters, and to keep them in custody under proper conditions. In conjunction these two laws will always work to immense advantage for the industry, and under them it is entirely reasonable to suppose that the supply of lobsters will constantly increase rather than diminish.

Generally speaking, the short lobster law is now much better obeyed than formerly, and the fishermen are rapidly becoming educated to the fact that a compliance with its restrictions is manifestly to their advantage. Short lobsters are still caught and sold. It is true, and thousands of them are sold. Only last week two men were caught in Portland with over 100 short lobsters, and by keeping an eye out for the fisherman almost any resident regarded as "reliable" can secure a supply at from 25 to 40 cents per dozen.

The purveyors are a hardy set and they are subject to hardship and privation to secure their stock from the sea. With extremely limited education, nearly all of them realize that it would be to their ultimate benefit to return to the sea lobsters under the legal limit.

They argue that they are entitled to the lobster, and that at such risk to secure and their contention is not without merit. Of late, however, many of them have come to realize that they are much better off to secure a short lobster to the water and receive 15 or 20 cents for it six months or so later, than to retain it and, after running great risk of being fined for having it in possession, be able to secure but from two to three cents for it.

Not all the fishermen are ready to accept this presentation of the situation today, but many more will admit that in the past two or three years ago and the number of converts rapidly increasing, especially in view of the rigid enforcement of the law and the collection of the fines imposed. One of the objections advanced in the past to the short lobster law by the men having the best interests of the industry at heart has been that it provided for the young lobsters, but permitted catching the more valuable members of the species, those of sufficient development to increase the kind. Although the law is very explicit in forbidding the catching of young lobsters, the practice of the short lobster law has been very easy for fishermen to destroy all evidence showing the sex and pregnancy of the short-fish by stripping the eggs from the intestines of the tail, where they are retained by the female lobster for a period of from nine to ten months, and throwing them into the sea. This practice not only killed thousands of embryo lobsters, but destroyed the bearing females as well and the wardens were powerless to prevent it, as it was almost impossible to catch the fishermen in the act which alone could furnish satisfactory evidence.

The new statutory provision, which is regarded by many as the best lobster law ever devised, authorizes the commissioner to purchase these egg-bearing females from the fishermen at 25 per cent more than the previous rate for lobsters and permits the fishermen to keep them in his possession until he finds an opportunity to dispose of them to the proper parties.

At first, however, the fishermen were even opposed to this arrangement, which is so clearly to their advantage, as well as to that of the industry itself, but they now accept it in proper spirit and the handsome little launch of the commissioner, the Sea Gull, is kept busy visiting the different points along the coast collecting the egg-bearing specimens which the fishermen have caught.

At the present time, over 10,000 of these are impounded by Commissioner Nickerson. They have been purchased from different fishermen during the past three months and were regarded as good ones to hold for the United States fish hatchery, which is located at Boothbay Harbor, while as many more thousands were liberated at different points along the coast as soon as they were caught.

DR. KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY

Breaks no Hearts, Excuses no Crimes.

Dr. David Kennedy's FAVORITE REMEDY is not a disguised enemy of the human race; where it cannot help, it does not harm. It is composed of vegetable ingredients and does not heat or inflame the blood but cools and purifies it. In all cases of Kidney troubles, Liver complaints, Constipation of the bowels, and the delicate derangements which afflict women, the action of Dr. Kennedy's FAVORITE REMEDY is beyond all praise. Thousands of grateful people voluntarily testify to this, in letters to Dr. Kennedy; and with a warmth and fullness of words which make business catalogues never so forcible. It makes no friends—uses no enemies—breaks no hearts. In its coming there is hope, and in its wings there is healing. We challenge a trial and are confident of the result. Your druggist has it. OXNE DOLLAR A BOTTLE. Bear in mind the name and address: Dr. David Kennedy, Rondout, New York.

The egg-bearing lobsters will be taken from the ponds at Bristol to the United States government establishment, where the fry will be carefully collected and the females returned to their natural element, the little fellow being developed as far as possible before being scattered at various points along the coast. It would not do for Commissioner Nickerson to have the eggs hatched at the pond establishment. No little lobsters left for future use. The mothers have no more connection among enjoying a meal of the baby shellfish, than does a sedate lady making up the 10,000 impounded lobsters, bearing from 100,000 to 150,000 eggs, it is doubtful if more than 100 healthy shellfish survive the slaughter of the innocents. Even from the well developed fry which is secured at the government hatching the percentage attaining the size at which the lobster industry of the state is so dependent, the destruction by marauding enemies being enormous.

That the new law can but prove of immense value and importance to the lobster industry of the state is that is apparent, and Commissioner Nickerson bases his assertion that Maine can continue to supply the country with lobsters on the fact that, through the operation of the provision, nearly as many lobsters are saved for the future by this method as was produced during 1904.

This is the third year the law has been in operation, and there can be no results under any circumstances from it for at least two years more, when the fry first put back attain marketable size, while the greatest benefits cannot be shown for from three to five years yet, when the fry of this and last year have developed into full-grown lobsters, but that it means an enormous increase in the production is already apparent.

Nevertheless, even without the advantages of the new law, and under existing conditions the supply this year will show a falling off from the last year of much over 6 per cent, if as great as that. Figures for the year are not tabulated by Commissioner Nickerson until Dec. 1, but he has means of making very accurate estimates. The 6 per cent reduction is probably very close to what will actually be shown when returns are all in. That decrease is attributed to local causes, and much as anything else and would not indicate a tendency toward extermination any more than a lessened run of shad, salmon or alewives, and there are years in which these fish vary show a great falling off, which is, however, atoned for in subsequent seasons.

There has been in 1905 an increased demand for lobsters, and this, with the slightly reduced output, has led to an advance in price. It is the opinion of expert fishermen, however, that the maximum level has been about reached and that those who could afford the delicious shellfish this year will not be deprived of the delicacy on account of cost during the next decade. It is figured that Maine can produce 10,000,000 lobsters as things were. In a few years the output will be nearly double that number under the new and improved conditions, and it is felt that the increased demand, which is certain, as long as people can get lobsters to eat, will be fully met by the additional catches of the fishermen aided by the distribution of fry.

When Capt. Nickerson purchases an egg-bearing lobster he punches a hole in its tail. Then he throws it overboard or saves it for impounding, his lobster resting not alone on the condition of the shell-fish, but depending somewhat on the local situation, as to whether it is a satisfactory place for lobsters to breed, etc. There is no objection to a fisherman catching an egg-bearing lobster as many times as he can. Of course, it is impossible for a man to fish for a particular lobster, but the puncher previously he is allowed credit for it just the same, and Capt. Nickerson makes another hole and throws it overboard again.

It has been suggested frequently that a close time on lobsters would prove efficacious in renewing the supply, but this is objected to on the ground that during the time when it would prove any advantage there is the greatest demand from the summer visitors to Maine, who regard the fish food supply as one of the chief attractions of the lovely resorts, and the hotel and boarding-house keepers on the coast would object strenuously to being deprived of one of their strongest cards. This, too, would materially affect the fishermen, and they would lose their customers at the most profitable time of the year, when catching the lobsters is easiest and least dangerous.

Another idea is to prohibit shipments of lobsters out of the state during the height of the greatest demand, say from July 15 to Sept. 1. While this is generally preferred to the thought of a close time, the objection is made that so many lobsters would be caught to sell to residents and boarders during the period referred to that the price would be reduced to not much over one cent each, and the fishermen would accordingly suffer.

Comr. Nickerson's efforts to solve the problem are, rather, directed toward increasing the demand and at the same time improve the supply. "There is no reason why Maine cannot produce all the lobsters needed," he said to a representative of a Boston paper the other day, "providing the laws are properly enforced. There are plenty of lobsters now and conditions are excellent for a continuation of the supply. It cannot be expected, however, that they will remain plenty if the laws are persistently violated and the egg-bearing females killed and the spawn destroyed. If the people desire to get rid of a pest, the eggs are destroyed and that very movement among the fishermen eventually would have exterminated the lobsters."

Brewster's Millions

Copyright, 1904,
by F. B. S. Stone
& CompanyBy GEORGE BARR McCUTCHEN
(RICHARD GRAVES)

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I—A supper in honor of the twenty-fifth birthday of Montgomery Brewster, grandson and heir of Edwin Brewster, millionaire, is interrupted by the announcement of old Mr. Brewster's death.

CHAPTER II—He is invited to dinner by Colonel Drew.

CHAPTER III—Monty offers to aid Mrs. Gray and Peggy, his foster mother and foster sister. He receives a letter from Grant & Ripley, lawyers, telling him that the fortune of his uncle, James Sedgwick of Montana, has been left to him. Mr. Sedgwick Jones is executor of the Sedgwick will.

CHAPTER IV—Brewster is informed that the Sedgwick fortune is left to him on condition that on his twenty-sixth birthday, Sept. 23 of the following year, he be absolutely penniless. The conditions forbid him to give away or to loan any money, but to get "his money's worth." The Sedgwick fortune amounts to more than $6,000,000.

CHAPTER V—Brewster is forbidden to take anyone into his confidence. He believes himself in love with Barbara Drew, daughter of Col. Drew. Mr. Jones, in Montana, states the conditions under which Monty is to dispose of the Brewster money. Brewster employs his friends to help him get rid of the million.

VI—Brewster makes friends with Mrs. DeMille, a society leader. He gives a magnificent dinner, after which the glass ceiling screen falls on the table, ruining it.

VII—Brewster whips a newspaper man who sneers at him and Miss Drew.

VIII—Brewster asks Jones whether he may marry and turn the money over to his wife and is told to "stick to his knitting." Monty confides in Peggy concerning his love for Barbara.

IX—Brewster bets on a prize fight, hoping to lose. He tells Miss Drew he loves her, but gets no decided reply. His prize fight wagers prove winners.

X—Brewster decides to invest in Lumber and Fuel, a falling stock; his purchase sends it up, and he makes $58,000.

XI—An auto accident costs Brewster $14,000. He has a quarrel with Barbara. Highwaymen take Brewster's money and valuables.

XII—Monty refuses to identify one of the robbers and reforms him. Brewster and Mrs. DeMille plan a ball. Miss Drew returns his Christmas gift.

XIII—Brewster loses $100,000 in a bank failure. He saves Colonel Drew from financial disaster, the conditions of his aid being that Barbara be not told.

XIV—At Miss Drew's cotillion Brewster makes love to her. He is repulsed and breaks finally with her.

XV—Brewster is left with appendicitis, and the ball is called off. Brewster is operated on and is nursed by Peggy.

XVI—Brewster's friends go with him to Florida. Peggy tries to reconcile Monty and Barbara.

XVII—Back to New York. Brewster's ball costs him much money. His friend, "Nipper" Harrison, confesses to having lost $90,000 of Brewster's money. He is forgiven and sent west.

XVIII—Brewster still has over $500,000 to spend. He takes twenty-five guests to Europe on a steam yacht.

XIX and XX—Brewster saves a drowning sailor's life. A flower fete on the Riviera costs Monty several thousands. He wins $40,000 at Monte Carlo.

XXI and XXII—Much money is spent in Italy. Peggy chides Brewster for spending so much.

XXIII—At Alexandria a sheik falls in love with Peggy.

XXIV—Peggy pretends to accept the savage's proposal. Brewster repulses the sheik, who returns to the yacht and carries off Peggy. Brewster's men pursue, and a threat by them to shoot is followed by the savages' counter threat to kill Peggy.

XXV and XXVI—Peggy is rescued by the sailor whom Brewster saved. Brewster decides to sail the yacht for North Cape. His friends balk at the expense. He says he will go alone.

CHAPTER XXVII.

"NOW will you be good?" cried Reggie Vanderpool to DeMille as Monty went down the companionway. The remark was precisely what was needed, for the pent up feelings of the entire company were now poured forth upon the unfortunate young man. Subway Smith was for hanging him to the yardarm, and the denunciation of the others was so decisive that Reggie sought refuge in the chart house. But the atmosphere had been materially cleared, and the leaders of the mutiny were in a position to go into executive session and consider the matter. The women waited on deck while the meeting lasted. They were unanimous in the opinion that the affair had been badly managed.

"They should have offered to stay by the ship provided Monty would let Mr. DeMille manage the cruise," said Miss Valentine. "That would have been a concession, and at the same time it would have put the cruise on an economical basis."

"In other words, you will accept a man's invitation to dinner and will allow you to order it and invite the other guests," said Peggy, who was quick to defend Monty.

"Well, that would be better than helping to eat up every bit of food he possessed." But Miss Valentine always avoided argument when she could and gave this as a parting thrust before she walked away.

"There must be something more than we know about in Monty's extravagance," said Mrs. Dan. "He isn't the kind of man to squander his last penny without having something left to show for it. There must be method in his madness."

"He has done it for us," said Peggy. "He has devoted himself all along to giving us a good time, and now we are showing our gratitude."

Further discussion was prevented by the appearance of the conspiring committee, and the whole company was summoned to hear DeMille's report as chairman.

"We have found a solution of our difficulties," he began. And his manner was so jubilant that every one became hopeful. "It is desperate, but I think it will be effective. Monty has given us the privilege of leaving the yacht at any port where we can take a steamer to New York. Now, my suggestion is that we select the most convenient place for all of us, and obviously there is nothing quite so convenient as Boston."

"Dan DeMille, you are quite foolish," cried his wife. "Who ever conceived such a ridiculous idea?"

"Captain Perry has his instructions," continued DeMille, turning to the captain. "Are we not acting along the lines marked out by Brewster himself?"

"I will sail for Boston if you say the word," said the thoughtful captain. "But he is sure to countermand such an order."

"He won't be able to, captain!" cried Subway Smith, who had for some time been eager to join in the conversation. "This is a genuine, dyed in the wool mutiny, and we expect to carry out the original plan, which was to put Mr. Brewster in Irons until we are safe from all opposition."

"It is my friend, Mr. Smith, and at least it is my duty to protect him from any indignity," said the captain stiffly. "You make for Boston, my dear captain, and we'll do the rest," said DeMille. "Mr. Brewster can't countermand your orders unless he sees you in person. We'll see to it that he has no chance to talk to you until we are in sight of Boston harbor."

The captain looked doubtful and shook his head as he walked away. At heart he was with the mutineers, and his mind was made up to assist them as long as it was possible to do so without violating his obligations to Brewster. He felt guilty, however, in surreptitiously giving the order to clear for Boston at daybreak. The chief officers were let into the secret, but the sailors were kept in darkness regarding the destination of the Flitter.

Montgomery Brewster's guests were immensely pleased with the scheme, although they were dubious about the outcome. Mrs. Dan regretted her hasty comment on the plan and entered into the plot with eagerness. In accordance with plans decided upon by the mutineers, Monty's stateroom door was guarded through the night by two of the men. The next morning as he emerged from his room he was met by Subway Smith and Dan DeMille.

"Good morning," was his greeting. "How's the weather today?"

"Bully," answered DeMille. "By the way, you are going to have breakfast in your room, old man."

Brewster unsuspectingly led the way into his stateroom, the two following. "What's the mystery?" he demanded. "We've been deputized to do some very nasty work," said Subway with a turned key in the door. "We are here to tell you what port we have chosen."

"It's awfully good of you to tell me," said Dan. "But we have studied up on the chloroform treatment of prisoners. We have decided on Boston."

"Is there a Boston on this side of the water?" asked Monty in mild surprise. "No; there is only one Boston in the universe, so far as we know. It is a large body of intellect surrounded by the rest of the world."

"What are you talking about? You don't mean Boston, Mass.?" cried Monty, leaping to his feet.

"Precisely. That's the port for us, and you told us to choose for ourselves," said Smith.

"Well, I won't have it, that's all!" exclaimed Brewster indignantly. "Captain Perry takes orders from me and from no one else."

"He already has his orders," said DeMille, smiling mysteriously. "I'll see about that." Brewster sprang to the door. It was locked, and the key was in Subway Smith's pocket. With an impatient exclamation he turned and pressed an electric button.

"It won't ring, Monty," explained Subway. "The wire has been cut. Now, be cool for a minute or two and we'll talk it over."

Brewster stormed for five minutes, the "delegation" sitting calmly by, smiling with exasperating confidence. At last he calmed down and in terms of reason demanded an explanation. He was given to understand that the yacht would sail for Boston and that he would be kept a prisoner for the entire voyage unless he submitted to the will of the majority.

Brewster listened darkly to the proclamation. He saw that they had gained the upper hand by a clever ruse and that only strategy on his part could outwit them. It was out of the question for him to submit to them now that the controversy had assumed the dignity of a struggle.

"But you will be reasonable, won't you?" said DeMille anxiously. "I intend to fight it out to the bitter end," said Brewster, his eyes flashing. "At present I am your prisoner, but it is a long way to Boston."

For three days and two nights the Flitter steamed westward into the Atlantic, with her temporary owner locked in his stateroom. The confinement was irksome, but he rather liked the sensation of being interested in something besides money. He frequently laughed to himself over the absurdity of the situation. His enemies were

JOYS OF MATERNITY

A WOMAN'S BEST HOPES REALIZED
Mrs. Potts Tells How Women Should Prepare for Motherhood

The darkest days of husband and wife are when they come to look forward to childless and lonely old age. Many a wife has found herself incapable of motherhood owing to a displacement of the womb or lack of strength in the generative organs.

Mrs. Anna Potts

Frequent backache and distressing pains, accompanied by offensive discharges and generally by irregular and scanty menstruation indicate a displacement or nerve degeneration of the womb and surrounding organs.

The question that troubles women is how can a woman who has some female trouble bear healthy children?

Mrs. Anna Potts, of 510 Park Avenue, Hot Springs, Ark., writes:

"My dear Mrs. Pinkham: During the early part of my married life I was delicate in health; both my husband and I were very anxious for a child to bless our home, but I had two miscarriages, and could not carry a child to maturity. A neighbor who had been cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound advised me to try it, and so soon felt that I was growing stronger, my headaches and backaches left me, I had no more bearing-down pains, and felt like a new woman. Within a year I became the mother of a strong, healthy child, the joy of our home. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is certainly a splendid remedy, and I wish every woman who wants to become a mother would try it. Actual sterility in woman is very rare. If any woman thinks she is sterile, let her try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and write to Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass. Her advice is free to expectant or would-be mothers."

friends, true and devoted; his jailers were relentless, but they were considerate. The original order that he should be guarded by one man was violated on the first day. There were times when his guard numbered at least ten persons and some of them served tea and begged him to listen to reason.

"It is difficult not to listen," he said fiercely. "It's like holding a man down and then asking him to be quiet. But my time is coming."

"Revenge will be his!" exclaimed Mrs. Dan tragically. "You might have your term shortened on account of good conduct if you would only behave," suggested Peggy, whose reserve was beginning to soften.

"Please be good and give up that notion. I haven't been happier during the whole cruise," said Monty. "On deck I wouldn't be noticed, but here I am quite the whole thing. Besides I can get out whenever I feel like it."

"I have $1,000 which says you can't," said DeMille, and Monty snapped him up so eagerly that he added, "that you can't get out of your own accord."

Monty acceded to the condition and offered odds on the proposition to the others, but there were no takers. "That settles it," he smiled grimly to himself. "I can make $1,000 by staying here, and I can't afford to escape."

On the third day of Monty's imprisonment the Flitter began to roll heavily. At first he glowered over the discomfort of his guards, who obviously did not like to stay below. Subway Smith and Bragdon were on duty and neither was famous as a good sailor. When Monty lighted his pipe there was consternation, and Subway rushed on deck.

"You are a brave man, Joe," Monty said to the other and blew a cloud of smoke in his direction. "I knew you would stick to your post. You wouldn't leave it even if the ship should go down."

Bragdon had reached the stage where he dared not speak and was busying himself trying to "breathe with the motion of the boat," as he had called it. "By Jove," continued Monty relentlessly. "This smoke is getting thick. Some of this toilet water might help if I sprinkled it about."

One whiff of the sweet smelling cologne was enough for Bragdon and he bolted up the companionway, leaving the stateroom door wide open and the prisoner free to go where he pleased. Monty's first impulse was to follow, but he checked himself on the threshold.

"Hang that bet with DeMille," he said to himself, and added aloud to the fleeing guard. "The key, Joe—I dare you to come back and get it!"

"This smoke is getting thick. Some of this toilet water might help if I sprinkled it about."

On deck a small part of the company braved the spray in the lee of the deck house, but the others had long since gone below. The boat was pitching furiously in the ugliest sea it had encountered, and there was anxiety underneath Captain Perry's mask of unconcern. DeMille and Dr. Lotless talked ness and the infinite strength of its enemy. To the captain, lashed to the bridge—hours when he feared each wave as it approached and wondered what new damage it had done as it receded. As the wind increased toward morning he felt sickening certainty that the brave little boat was beaten. Somehow she seemed to lose courage, to waver a bit and almost give up the fight. He watched her miserably as the dismal dawn came out of the sea. Yet it was not until 7 o'clock that the crash came which shook the passengers out of their lethargy and filled them with shivering terror. The whistling of the broken shaft seemed to consume the ship. In every cabin it spoke with horrible vividness of disaster. The clamor of voices and the rush of many feet which followed meant but one thing. Almost instantly the machinery was stopped—an ominous silence in the midst of the dull roar of the water and the cry of the wind.

It was a terrified crowd that quickly gathered in the main cabin, but it was a brave one. There were no cries and few tears. They expected anything and were ready for the worst, but they would not show the white feather. It was Mrs. Dan who broke the tension. "I made sure of my pearls," she said. "I thought they would be appreciated at the bottom of the sea."

Brewster came in upon their laughter. "I like your nerve, people!" he exclaimed. "You are all right. It won't be so bad now. The wind has dropped."

A widow and an adopted son survive him. Funeral services at the Baptist vestry Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Remember the fair, dinner and supper at the Methodist church, Dec. 6 and 7. On Wednesday a New England boiled dinner will be served from 11 to 12:30. Thursday at 5:45 a chicken supper. Many useful and fancy articles have been prepared for sale. Special attention will be called to the merchants' table. The peanut and fruit stand and the tulip garden will also be among the chief attractions.

AN UNUSUAL OFFER

"It isn't often that I have faith enough in the medicine put up by other people to be willing to offer to refund the money if it does not cure," said W. F. Norcross to a customer. "I have faith in this medicine, but I am glad to sell Dr. Howard's specific for the cure of constipation and dyspepsia on that basis."

"The Dr. Howard Company, in order to get a quick introductory sale, authorizes me to sell their regular fifty cent bottles at half-price, 25 cents, and, although I have sold a lot of it, and have guaranteed every package, not one has been brought back as unsatisfactory."

"One great advantage of this specific," he continued, "is its small dose and convenient form. There are sixty doses in a vial that can be carried in the vest pocket or purse, and every one has more medicinal power than a big pill or tablet or a tumbler of mineral water."

Nature Needs But Little.

Nature needs only a Little Early Riser and then to keep the bowels clean, the liver active, and the system free from bile, headaches, constipation, etc. "The famous Little Pills 'Early Risers' are pleasant in effect and perfect in action. They never gripe or sicken, but tone and strengthen the liver and kidneys. J. C. P. Jones, Chief Burgess, Millisburgh Borough, Pa., says, 'I never used pills in my family during the 40 years of my life. I have used your Little Early Risers. No better pill was ever made. Sold by W. H. Kittredge.'

Hives are a terrible torment to the little folk, and to some older ones. Easily cured. Doan's skin ointment never fails. Instant relief, permanent cure. At any drug store or by mail.

An alarm of fire at about 1:30 o'clock Sunday morning called the company to the Fletcher block on Main street. It started in Dr. Shorkey's office. When the doctor was aroused by the smoke he was nearly suffocated but worked hard to extinguish the fire before the arrival of the fire company. Most of his loss is from smoke and water. He carried no insurance. Underneath the doctor's office is the drug store of E. E. Boynton. The damages here too are mostly by water and will amount to about $1000, covered by insurance. The building which is owned by E. C. Fletcher, is also insured.

John McKenna of Boston is in town for a few days.

A. H. Bickmore of New York was the guest of friends in town over Sunday.

The Magawear Whist Club will meet Friday evening with Miss Maude Brown, Washington street.

E. H. Davis opened a confectionery and candy store at the corner of Clark's hall Monday. Al. Boggs will attend to the manufacturing branch.

Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Allen and Horace Marble of Williston are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. L. P. Haskell.

The great crop of cabbage has induced many Waldoboro farmers to cut into krait which is in great demand, not only for home consumption, but in other places. It finds a ready market in Boston and in fact wherever Waldoboro's fame for krait is known. The art of making the genuine article has been transmitted unimpaired from our German ancestors.

Mrs. Emma Yates of Waterville, and her son Lieut. Yates of the U. S. Navy were here Friday to see Mrs. Yates' father, Capt. Isaac W. Comery.

Sells More of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy Than All Others Put Together.

Mr. Thos. George, a merchant at Mt. Elgin, Ontario, says: "I have had the local agency for Chamberlain's Cough Remedy ever since it was introduced into Canada, and I sell as much of it as I do of all other lines I have on my shelves put together. Of the many dozens sold under guarantee, I have not turned a single one back. I can personally recommend this medicine as I have used it myself and given it to my children and always with the best results." For sale at W. H. Kittredge's Drug Store; C. H. Pendleton's Drug Store.

STONINGTON

Lovers of dancing should not forget the grand mask ball in the opera house Thanksgiving night. Manager Rouse promises the time of the season. Special prizes will be given and Alexander's orchestra will be present.

Every one of food you eat that fails to digest, digests Stanley A. Gregory of Highland, were here Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Elwell of Camden were at David Coates, Sunday.

Mrs. Frank Ripley and son of Rockport were recent guests at A. T. Hamilton's.

Three of the pits at the car house have been piped for steam heat. Ralph Wentworth, who did the piping, does not pose as a steam fitter but he did a creditable and artistic piece of work.

Capt. J. F. Sprague has been off duty as nightman at the car house for a few nights. The night the Captain is a good hand in making "sour krait."

The Grange Sewing Circle met Monday afternoon with Worthy Master and W. H. N. Brazier in the Wagon, the brothers coming to supper and for the evening. The officers, elected at the first meeting at Jason O. Packard's are Mrs. Hattie A. Baker, president, Miss Annette Ames, secretary; Mrs. Linda H. Stevens, treasurer. The sisters are devoting their time to making quilts to be sold later at a fair.

Most of the houses about here have now been equipped with storm doors and brush or other banking material has been put in place about them but the Indian summer weather of last week almost made one think spring rather than winter was coming.

Clifford Lodge has been closed for the winter and Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Smith are visiting their daughter, Mrs. Dudley Wolfe, and family at Tarrytown-Hudson, N. Y. and will later go to Omaha, Neb.

Mrs. Maurice Gregory and son were recently at Charles E. Gregory's from Rockland.

Jacob B. Packard is enjoying a gunning trip in the Moosehead Lake region with headquarters at Blanchard.

Mrs. S. E. Ewell of Thomaston is the guest of her daughter, Mrs. H. N. Brazier.

Charles W. Studley is making good progress on his piazza.

The funeral of Mrs. Charlotte Young, wife of Daniel M. Young, took place at her late residence, Wednesday afternoon, Rev. G. S. Hill officiating. There was a goodly attendance of neighbors and friends and the floral tributes were beautiful.

Arthur B. Packard, our genial third selectman, was in Portland, last week. Traveling Library No. 128-E has been

APPLETON

Our village schools have commenced with Miss Fannie Gushee teacher of the grammar and Mrs. Ava Keller Simmons in the primary department.

Evelyn Taylor has the West Appleton school, Miss Agnes Taylor the Ridge and Mrs. Julia Bills the Gurney school.

The West Appleton telephone line has been extended across the river to H. C. Poole's son's home. We now have the New England, the Union, and West Appleton Company lines.

John Taylor and Miss Ivy Wentworth were married by Rev. G. A. Chapman Saturday last. They will go to house keeping in the Richmond house, Mr. Taylor having taken a lease of the place for two years.

Eldridge S. Fletcher of Belfast was here on business Thursday.

BURKETTVILLE

George Grinnell, who has been visiting his sister in Boston, has returned home.

Fred Sukeforth of Augusta spent Thursday at A. T. Mitchell's.

Mrs. Eliza Miller, and Mrs. Nellie Burkett of Washington spent Wednesday at Mrs. Ada McDowell's.

A. M. Dow, was in Union Wednesday.

B. F. Knowles, of South Montville was here Thursday on business.

A TRIBUTE.

It is not always the person whose name is blazed abroad who is the greatest or most useful. A quiet life may be great and useful. Death has recently removed from Knox county one whose sphere of activity may have been limited, but whose life was truly useful, Mrs. Margaret A. Thompson.

As one who was her intimate neighbor and friend as well as pastor I wish to pay her this little tribute. I wish to pay her this little tribute. I wish to pay her this little tribute.

She will be missed by her neighbors and friends who always had good reason to speak well of her. She will be missed by her sisters and sons who loved her so well and whom she loved so tenderly. She will be missed in her church where she was a regular attendant, and in the Eastern Star Lodge of Union, where she moved in a circle of her dear friends. The Temperance cause of Knox county has lost a loyal friend. The White Ribbon was her dearest badge. She was always an uncompromising foe to intemperance in all of its manifestations. She has passed over the river and left a good example for all young women. "Let her works praise her in the gates." Prov. 31:21. A. T. McWhorter Standish, Maine.

Every Once You Eat that fails to digest, digests Stanley A. Gregory of Highland, were here Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin E. Rhodes are expected here from Newark, N. J. and will probably occupy their dwelling, lately vacated by Albert Cadwell and family.

Mrs. Isaac Jameson, 2nd, is improving slowly.

Edgar L. Gregory, Miss Katie T. Gregory and Miss Stanley A. Gregory of Highland, were here Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Elwell of Camden were at David Coates, Sunday.

Mrs. Frank Ripley and son of Rockport were recent guests at A. T. Hamilton's.

Three of the pits at the car house have been piped for steam heat. Ralph Wentworth, who did the piping, does not pose as a steam fitter but he did a creditable and artistic piece of work.

GLENCOVE

Misses Grace Nicholas and Maude Nichols of Freedom are spending a few days with Mrs. Fred Murch.

Mrs. Flossie Nichols of Rockland called on her uncle, E. T. Tolman, Friday.

William Fletcher of Lincolnville and Deputy Llewellyn Fletcher of Hiram were recent guests at Charles Ingraham's.

The trial of the battleship Virginia was viewed with much interest Tuesday. Those looking on the high land had a fine chance to witness the speed trials of "Uncle Sam's" ships on the Monroe Island course.

Mrs. Nelson Clough called on friends in Thursday afternoon.

Albert T. Carroll, who has spent the greater part of the summer and fall doing mason work for Hiram Pickler and Sons at South Poland, has completed his labors there and returned home.

Those who arrived at the school-house early Sunday afternoon to attend service, were surprised to find the feminine portion of the audience standing on the seats and screaming with alarm. Several men were on the war path armed with shovels or whatever weapon they could secure, while a monster rat was playing hide and seek among the pews. A dog was called to the rescue but before he arrived on the scene of action Mr. Rat had found a safe hiding place in the interior of the organ.

The organist, who arrived a little later, was not informed that the instrument was inhabited and played throughout the meeting as calmly as if the rats were not there.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. E. Henderson of South Thomaston were at Charles J. Gregory's Sunday.

Mrs. Emma Packard of Clayton, New York is visiting Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Packard.

Joseph Robinson of St. George was the guest of Edward O. Gregory Friday night.

Miss Nellie Rollins of Rockport was at Maude A. Luffin's Friday.

Master Robert S. Gregory entertained Miss Annie Lane and his teacher, Miss Carrie Fuller at a Wednesday evening service in honor of Master Robert's eleventh and Miss Annie's thirteenth birthday anniversary. The birthday cake was illuminated with 11 candles. Games were played in the evening and refreshments served.

Mrs. W. W. Gregory visited her mother, Mrs. Vesta Oxten, in Rockville Thursday.

Bert S. Gregory was in West Rockport last week, the guest of his grandfather, Silas Carroll.

Charles Ingraham was in South Hope Sunday.

Schooner "Metric" Outhouse, arrived at the wharf of the R. T. & C. S. Railway, the last of the week with 374 tons of soft coal from South Amboy. It took 12 days to unload her cargo, averaging 234 tons per hour, which the crew engaged in the work of the day.

It seems to be the style for the street railway conductors to carry a side line since Conductor Hurd set the example, by selling eggs and later by engaging in photographic work with a specialty of souvenir postal cards. Conductor Conery has been dealing in cranberries which were raised on "the home place" at Warren and which met with a ready sale. Those who did not order until the supply was exhausted had to wait a larger next year as those who bought speak highly of the quality of the fruit.

Rev. G. S. Hill conducted the religious services at the school house Sunday afternoon. Mr. Hill is contemplating holding a series of revival meetings at the school house.

H. C. Small of Camden, was in town Sunday.

"Capt." Herbert E. Thomas has hauled up his sloop for the winter and celebrated the event by shooting a black duck Saturday.

Frank Lawrence, of Rockland, is again on duty at the car house after a two week's vacation which he and Mrs. Ulmer spent in Massachusetts, visiting South Framingham, Boston, Lawrence, and Walpole among other places.

In Social Circles

The Rubenstein Club will meet for rehearsal with Mrs. Furbish, Beech street, next Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Mrs. J. E. Doherty has returned from a visit of several months in Boston.

Mrs. A. H. Berry returned Saturday from a week's business trip to Boston.

Mrs. H. A. Buffum entertained a small company of friends Friday evening at her home, 100 Court street, who have just arrived home from Europe and England, as previously stated in this column. Miss Nute makes a special profession of miniature painting, study of which she pursued during her European sojourn, but she also studied in oils under acknowledged masters and the guests were delighted with a view of a score or so of canvasses, representing a portion of her work abroad. Some of these were copies of noted paintings now in the world's great galleries; other studies from nature made chiefly in Denmark and England. Miss Nute has a fine eye both for form and color and her painting exhibits genius, whether in original conception or in the difficult paths of the copyist. She left Saturday for her home in Woonsocket, R. I. Later she is to open a studio, either in New York or Boston.

Last Friday evening Mrs. J. G. Piper entertained friends at her home on Rankin street. Mr. Piper, last week being in Belfast, his wife and some of his friends planned to give him a surprise in honor of his 70th birthday. Upon his arrival Friday night he found his parlor filled with smiling faces, and not wishing to outdo the others he just passed through the rooms greeting each one as active and spry as a boy of sixteen. Lunch was served, after which the guests once more returned to the parlors, when, after a few appropriate remarks Mrs. Warren Gardner in behalf of the friends assembled, presented Mr. Piper with a gold chain and a beautiful picture. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Elkanah Spear, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Farrand, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Gardner, Mr. and Mrs. G. L. Farrand, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Farrand, Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Spear, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Spear, Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Boynton, Mrs. M. A. Spear, Mrs. Lizzie Ingraham, Mr. and Mrs. S. G. Gahan, Mr. and Mrs. Alda Steel, Mrs. Emma Rogers, Mrs. Fannie Blackmore, Mr. and Mrs. Bert Clark, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Hall, Mr. and Mrs. Wylie, Mr. Hall, Frank Richardson and family, Reuel Whitney, Frank Harrington, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Haradan, Mrs. Clara Crockett and Mr. and Mrs. John Simpson.

Mrs. A. O. Pillsbury and daughter Marion have gone to Boston, where they will visit Mrs. Pillsbury's mother, Mrs. Marion M. Pillsbury.

Reuben S. Thordike is home from Portland for the winter.

G. T. Wade left yesterday for a business trip to New York.

William Ryan, waiter at the Cony House in Augusta, spent Sunday at his former home in this city.

Mrs. Frank Simmons of Boston is visiting Mr. and Mrs. Fred O. Shier at the Meadows.

Mrs. F. O. Smith of Portland is visiting her sister, Mrs. E. C. Frye in Camden, and later will be the guest of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Connelley in this city.

The dance in St. John's hall Friday night, given by Miss Lucy Crockett, netted a neat little sum for the benefit of John Barrows, who has been rendered helpless as a result of being kicked by a horse some months ago. Mr. Barrows was formerly employed by Miss Crockett's father, and is deserving much sympathy on account of his present plight.

Albert Shepherd of Portland was a guest at R. Anson Crie's last week. Mr. Shepherd is a former resident of this city and has a number of friends here looking up old friends, chief among whom were his Grand Army comrades.

Miss Gena Rockliffe has gone to Wadsworth for an extended visit.

Mrs. and Mrs. Maurice Moran celebrated the first anniversary of their marriage Thursday evening, Nov. 25, at their cozy home, 42 Grace street, where a company of friends assembled to extend congratulations. The evening was spent in a social manner with refreshments of ice cream, cake and punch. Mr. and Mrs. Moran were the recipients of many dainty and useful gifts.

Mrs. A. W. Lyon of Ligonier, Ind., is in the city on an extended visit, being a guest at present of Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Spear.

Mrs. C. C. Pooler entertained the members of the Congregational church last night. A picnic supper was served. Mrs. Henry Day will entertain the Methodist circle at her home on Travers street Friday afternoon and evening.

Mrs. Helen Pendleton returned last week from a fortnight's visit to Bangor.

Mrs. Allen Murray and children, Willie and Florence, left last week for Boston where they will spend the winter.

The 12mo Club met last evening at the home of C. E. Littlefield. The paper was by W. S. White, whose subject was "Samuel Pepys and His Diary."

The Baptist Choral Association gave a house-warming surprise party last evening at the home of Mrs. Ada Mills on Limerock street. Games, music and refreshments formed the program and Mrs. Mills was presented with a handsome chair. Rev. W. J. Day was at the head of the strategy board and the surprise party was a very happy affair. Mrs. Mills has been a member of the Choral Association for some years and its director two years.

Following was the program of the Rubenstein club, Friday afternoon, at the meeting held with Mrs. Jennie C. C. White:

Paper—Italian Opera

Piano Selections—Mrs. Pooler

Seminar—Rosenin

o-Echoes from Metropolitan Opera House

Vocal—Mrs. Jennie White

Vocal—The Alpine Rose

Vocal—Sings the Nightingale to the Rose

Miss Webb

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Sylvester entertained friends at their home on Prospect street Friday evening. The time was passed very pleasantly with games, a musical program was given, consisting of songs and duets. Refreshments were served, and a good time was enjoyed by all.

The Shakespeare Society met last evening with the Misses Esekine, Beech street. Miss Lucy Rhodes read an interesting paper descriptive of her trip through Yellowstone Park. The study of Coriolanus was continued.

Congressman Littlefield and wife left this morning. Mr. Littlefield to attend a meeting of the directors of the Equi-

In Boston.

Interesting Items Personal and Otherwise Gathered for Courier-Gazette Readers.

Boston, Nov. 28, 1905.

Rear Admiral and Mrs. Albert S. Shaw are among the patrons and patronesses of the illustrated lecture on "Paul Jones" to be given in Boston, Dec. 15 by Rev. Henry R. Rose.

The Courier-Gazette reporter recently made a friendly call on M. A. Spear, at his place of business, 100 Court street, near Bowdoin Square. Mr. Spear who deals in gent's furnishings and has a finely stocked store at the above address, is a Warren, Me., boy who came to Boston some years ago, and made a business success. For some seven or eight years he was manager of the big Ray store, gent's furnishings, corner of West and Washington streets, but the past dozen years has been in business for himself. He is well up in Masonry and one of Boston's well known Mystic Shriner. He resides in Cambridge.

The monthly gathering of the Knox Club of Massachusetts will be held at Hotel Langham Tuesday evening. Miss Louise McLaughlin, Miss Swain and James R. Small will sing and Mrs. Littlefield will read. It is also hoped that Clarence Pendleton will sing. Refreshments will be served. The program will begin at eight p. m. All Knox county people are cordially invited to be present. A committee will be appointed at this meeting to nominate officers for the ensuing year, to be held on at the December meeting, which will occur Dec. 28.

CAPT. JOHN BERNET HELD UP

Rockland Man Victim of North Carolina Highwaymen.

A Wilmington, N. C., exchange of the 24th inst. says:

Capt. John Bernet, of the schooner Helvetia, which is loading lumber at the wharves of the Cape Fear Lumber Company, in the Northern section of the city for N. Y., was held up at the point of a pistol by two negro highwaymen, on Nutt street, early last night. Capt. Bernet had been up town and was returning to board his ship when he was "handcuffed" while in the yards of the Coast Line and the Carolina Central depot, where it was very dark, he was accosted by two negroes, one of whom spoke up in a familiar way, "Hello! Mate! Capt. Bernet, isn't it?" He replied indignantly, "You're mistaken in your man." But they evidently were not, for one of them looked a revolver under the Captain's nose and made him "handcuff" while the second of the negroes went through his pockets. Fortunately the captain had only 70 cents in change on his person and they took nothing else.

Capt. Bernet said, in reporting the matter to the police station, that he had been going to sea all his life, but he had never been so "handcuffed" as he ever saw on either side of the Atlantic.

The many Rockland friends of Capt. Bernet will be pleased to learn he escaped from the clutches of the negroes without injury.

GEORGE W. INGRAHAM.

The Sunday lost a well known resident died at the death of George W. Ingraham. Heart disease was the cause of his demise, his sickness covering a period of only two or three days. Mr. Ingraham was born at the Meadows and he was a lifelong resident of the homestead where he passed away on Sunday. For many years he had a large teaming business, owning many fine horses. His farm was one of the largest and best at the Meadows and in connection with it he conducted an extensive milk route. As a citizen and neighbor he was held in high regard. He is survived by his wife, whose maiden name was Agnes Gregory; and two children, Hanson G. Ingraham, and Mrs. W. A. McLean. The funeral takes place this afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Death of Capt. Anthony Greeley Prominent Grand Army Veteran and Mariner

Boston, Nov. 28, 1905.

Capt. Anthony N. Greeley, one of Rockland's best known mariners, died Saturday afternoon at his home on Maverick street. Since his retirement from the sea, which was compelled by the condition of his health, about three years ago, Capt. Greeley had failed rapidly in mind and body, and while he was able to visit his family home at Grand Army hall and the shipping office until a few weeks ago, it was clearly apparent to his friends that the end was rapidly approaching. For the two weeks prior to his death his mind was a blank and he was unable to recognize the faithful relatives and friends who ministered unto him.

Capt. Greeley was a native of Albion and had followed the sea nearly all his life, pausing in that vocation only long enough to take up arms in his country's defense. He enlisted in the Second Maine Battery as a private, Dec. 27, 1861, and at the end of his three years' service held the rank of sergeant. When he re-enlisted Dec. 31, 1863, he was promoted to second lieutenant. The important battles and engagements in which he participated were as follows: Cedar Mountain, Rappahannock Station, Second Bull Run, Chantilly, Fredericksburg, Burnside's "mud march," which Capt. Greeley always asserted was worse than the hospital, Gettysburg, Wilderness, Spotsylvania, North Anna, Cold Harbor and siege of Petersburg. Capt. Greeley served under the following army commanders: McDowell, Pope, McClellan, Burnside, Hooker, Meade and Grant as general commander of the 1st Maine Battalion. He was in the Maine House, Alexandria, Va., two months, with typhoid fever. He was never injured in battle but had a horse shot from under him on three occasions. His term of service was three years, five months and 21 days.

Capt. Greeley was one of the most active workers in Edwin Libby Post, and served as its commander in 1903-4. He had also been at the head of the Fourth Maine Regiment and Second Maine Battery Association.

Among the well known coasting vessels which he had commanded were the schooners Ida Hudson, Flewelling, Alfred Keene, Fannie Whitmore, W. H. Allison, J. Chancy Crafts, D. H. Ingraham, Eugene Borda and James Malloy. He sailed principally for Cobb, Wight & Co., making voyages to Richmond, Va. and the West Indies.

He was a faithful and successful mariner. His last sea voyage was made in the schooner James Malloy, which he was obliged to leave in Virginia and come home by rail.

Capt. Greeley was a citizen who was held in high regard by everybody. He was genial, generous and whole-souled. He is survived by his wife, whose maiden name was Rose A. Duncan; and by one daughter, Mrs. Mabel F. Pratt of Boston.

The funeral took place yesterday afternoon and in the large assemblage gathered to pay its last respects were not less than 50 of Capt. Greeley's Grand Army comrades. The floral tributes were very numerous, one of the most noticeable being a handsome pillow bearing the word "Comrade" from Edwin Libby Post. Rev. W. V. Carver officiated. The pall-bearers were four members of the Second Maine Battery, George P. Thomas, Jacob E. Farrington, Frank P. Witham and Myrick H. Nash. The undertakers were John W. Titus, W. P. Cook, H. S. Hobbs and W. O. Steele. The interment was at Sea View cemetery.

MARY A. TOWLE

Miss Mary A. Towle, who has been employed for the past 20 years at the tailor shop of H. W. Rose & Co., died Saturday after undergoing an unsuccessful surgical operation. The deceased was 48 years of age and a native of Appleton. During her residence in this city she acquired a number of friends and was held in especially high regard by her associates at the tailor shop. The funeral takes place this afternoon at 2 o'clock.

The Fitzsimmons-O'Brien contest will be held in San Francisco, Tuesday evening, Dec. 20.

Mike "Twins" Sullivan got the decision over Jimmy Gardner in the 20th round in a fight in San Francisco. Gardner was a favorite at 6 to 10. The fight was at catch-weights. Up to the eighteenth round it was generally conceded to be an even fight, but then Sullivan's superior strength and facility of recuperating quickly turned the tide.

IN SPORTING CIRCLES.

Rockland Polo Loses Another Game, but by a Close Score—Yale is King of the "Big Four."

Following is the standing of the four teams comprising the Maine Polo League:

Played	Won	Lost	Ties	Per Cent
Lewiston .....	4	1	—	80
Bath .....	3	2	—	60
Rockland .....	1	3	—	25
Gardiner .....	0	4	—	0

On Soldiers' Field, Cambridge, Saturday afternoon, Yale defeated Harvard in the annual football match. The score was 6 to 0 and the attendance was 43,000, the largest crowd that ever saw a football game in this country.

Harvard played Yale to a standstill in the first half. Yale's score was due largely to a muffed punt by Nichols almost immediately after he was put in to take the place of Foster. The ball was on Yale's territory two-thirds of the way to the goal line.

On the 15-yard line and again on Harvard's 15-yard line. The features of the game were the line plunges of Brill and Squires, the fake plunges by Nichols on which a back was sent to skirt the end and the thirty-five yard run by Boone in the first half. Morse, Yale halfback, was injured from the game by the umpire for rough play. Other important football results Saturday were as follows:

Dartmouth, 24; Brown, 6; University of Pennsylvania, 23; Columbia, 0; West Point, 17; Syracuse, 0; Annapolis, 12; Virginia Polytechnic, 6; Swarthmore, 50; Wesleyan, 6.

At Bath Saturday night the Rockland polo team lost its third successive game, but it was by the same score, which has characterized their other defeats, and goes to show that Rockland will give 'em all a shaking up when she has had her final acceptance.

McLown was unable to accompany the team, which was in its first rush, with Shuman substituting in second rush. Whitney was out of the game and Larabee played half back, with Mitchell at center. The dispatches say that there was an audience of 700 and that it was one of the hottest contests seen in Bath since the league games several years ago.

The Sunday, Nov. 27, was a day of triumph for the Rockland team. They won their second game, with Shuman substituting in second rush. Whitney was out of the game and Larabee played half back, with Mitchell at center. ## BABY'S AWFUL ITCHING ECZEMA

Sores All Over Face and Body—
Could Not Tell What She Looked Like—Unable to Sleep—Grew
Worse Under Doctors.

CURED BY CUTICURA IN ONE MONTH

A grateful mother, in the following letter, tells of another of those marvelous cures by Cuticura: "When my baby was four months old her skin broke out with a humor. I took her to a doctor, who said it was eczema. He gave me medicine to give her, but she kept getting worse all the time. Her little face and body were so covered with sores and large scales you could not tell what she looked like. No child ever had a worse case. Her face was being eaten away, and even her finger nails fell off. Then it itched so she could not sleep, and for many weary nights we could get no rest. At last we got Cuticura Soap and Ointment, first bathing her in warm water with the Soap, and then spreading on the Ointment with soft cloths. I saw a change in a week. The sores began to heal, and she could sleep at night, and in one month she had not one sore on her face or body. Any mother having children with eczema or humors will find a friend in Cuticura Soap and Ointment. (Signed) Mrs. Mary Sanders, 709 Spring St., Camden, N. J., Aug. 14, 1904."

The foregoing statement justifies the oft-repeated assertion that Cuticura Soap and Ointment afford instant relief, and permit sleep for baby and rest for tired mothers, and points to a speedy, permanent, and economical cure, when all else fails, in the most torturing, disfiguring, itching, burning, bleeding, scaly, crusty, and pimply skin, and scalp humors.

Cuticura Soap, Ointment, and Pills are sold throughout the world. Cuticura Drug Co., Inc., Boston, Sole Proprietors.

TO RESIDE IN MEDFORD, MASS.

Ex-Gov. Alonzo Garcelon of Lewiston, formerly one of the most prominent Democrats in Maine, has taken up his residence in Medford, Mass. He moved there several weeks ago, and is now staying with his daughter, Mrs. Edith G. Davis, at her home on George street. The ex-governor is in his 33d year and enjoys the best of health. He was born in Lewiston, Mass., which is now Lewiston, Me., May 6, 1813. He was educated at Bowdoin college, where one of his classmates was George Emery, at one time editor of the Boston Post. After leaving Bowdoin he entered the Ohio Medical college, and received the degree of M. D. After his graduation from the medical college he returned to Lewiston, where he engaged in the practice of medicine. His practice was extensive up to a few years ago, when he retired. When asked why he did not remain in Maine, the ex-governor said: "I thought that I would like to live quietly with my daughter and I certainly enjoy life in this city." The former governor stands six feet in height and is slim and erect. Daily he may be seen taking long walks through the principal streets of Medford. Dr. Garcelon has been married twice and has three sons, two daughters, several grandchildren and a great-grandson. Both of his wives are dead.

THE WEARY WAY.

Daily Becoming Less Wearisome to Many in Rockland.

With a back that aches all day. With rest disturbed at night. Annoying urinary disorders. "This a weary way, indeed." Doan's Kidney Pills drive weariness away.

Are endorsed by Rockland citizens.

Mrs. L. H. Webster, of 47 Thomaston street, Rockland, Me., says: "In the summer of 1898 I made a statement for publication recommending Doan's Kidney Pills. As I said at that time, I had been troubled for a good many years with a dull aching in the kidneys and back and had it to such an extent that I was suffering severely most of the time. A hard day's work was sure to tell on me and I was often compelled to lie down and rest. In some way Doan's Kidney Pills came into my notice and I got a box and began using them. I found so much benefit that I followed up the treatment until completely cured. Since then I have met and talked with a number of persons who have used Doan's Kidney Pills, and who, like myself, believe there is no remedy so good for kidney troubles."

Mothers Praise It. Mothers everywhere praise One Minute Cough Cure for the sufferings it has relieved and the lives of their little ones it has saved. A certain cure for Coughs, Croup and Whooping-Cough. Makes breathing easy, cuts out phlegm, and draws out the inflammation. Sold by Wm. H. Kittredge.

The largest dinner ever given assembled at Paris a few days ago. The Mutualists of France dined at the "Galerie des Machines." About fifty thousand sat down together. Five hundred waiters served and 15,000 dishes were used at nine miles of tables. There were 120,000 plates, which, if piled up, would reach ten times higher than the Eiffel Tower. The "cheer" included 25,000 bottles of red and white wine, 45,000 bottles of beer, 6000 bottles of milk, 10,000 bottles of mineral waters, 15,000 bottles of champagne, 4000 half-bottles of liqueur, and two steam trains, each of 15 horse-power, brewed the coffee. Meats of all kinds weighed seventy tons, and there were three-quarters of a ton of cigars.

MUSICAL MATTERS.

Circulars have been received announcing a course of five concerts to be given in Portland under the management of C. A. Ellis. The first of these concerts was given by the Boston Symphony Orchestra on November 22. For the first, Mrs. Johanna Gadske was the soloist. On Wednesday, Dec. 13 the Loughey Club, with Miss Laura Hawkins, pianist, will give a concert. A miscellaneous program in which Mrs. Rider-Kelsey, Mrs. Olga Samoroff and Mr. Myron W. Whitney will appear. And on Jan. 24, Mrs. Sembrich is to be the soloist with the famous Boston Symphony Quartet. This quartet consists of Willy Hess, first violin; Otto Roth, second violin; Emilie Ferri, viola, and Heinrich Warnke, cello. A course of such a character must surely appeal to Rockland's music-lovers, and arrangements might be made for a party from this city to attend some if not all of the concerts.

From the Oliver Ditson Co. of Boston we have received a "Christmas Song" by Louis Dressler with violin obligato; and the following in octavo form for mixed voices: "O, Come Let Us Worship;" Hauptmann arranged by Dudley Buck; "Communion Service in E-flat," Carl Schuler; "O All Ye Works of the Lord," H. J. Stowess; "Rejoice!" (Christmas Processional), H. Clough Leiter; "Sing O Heavens," H. Clough Leiter; "Brightest and Best," Chas. Fountaine; and the last two are Christmas anthems which, although good for quartet work, would be especially pleasing for chorus choirs.

Prof. J. K. Paine, for many years head of the department of music at Harvard University, has resigned. He has been connected with the college as instructor since 1862 and is one of the oldest and most distinguished of American composers. Prof. Paine is a Maine man, and was for some time engaged in teaching in Portland before going to Massachusetts.

Vincent D'Indy, the distinguished French musician, is coming to this country in December as the guest of Mr. Gerike, and will conduct several of the Boston Symphony concerts.

Gadske is booked for seventy-five concerts, and her tour extends across the continent from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

"What do you think of Beethoven's works?" "I never visited 'em," answered Mr. Seldman, absent-mindedly. "What does he manufacture?"—Ex.

The concert by the Boston Symphony Orchestra in New York recently was the first of their annual series in that city. Mrs. Gadske and Ellison Van Hoose were the soloists and both received an enthusiastic greeting. Every seat in the house had been sold an hour before the concert began, and hundreds of people were turned away. The programme was composed wholly of Wagnerian music. Mr. Van Hoose singing the Prize Song from Die Meistersinger, and Mrs. Gadske Brunhilde's solo from the Gotterdammerung.

"A cablegram from Geneva, Switzerland, under date of Nov. 15, announces that Ignace Paderewski, the noted virtuoso and composer, has completely recovered from the attack of paralysis which forced him to abandon his American tour. His doctors, however, are extremely doubtful whether he will ever be able to appear in public again. Paderewski is anxious to get to work once more and is most distressed at the thought that he must abandon his public career."—Musical America.

Schumann Heink is in deep trouble on account of his decision to become an American citizen and her desire to bring her family to her American home. The German government insists upon retaining her eldest son for military duty, and has permitted the three younger children (two boys and a girl) to come to America only upon condition that they be educated as Germans. The boys must return to Germany for military duty. Madame Schumann-Heink's property in Germany has been divided from her and a guardian appointed for her eight children, and the great singer thus expressed her grief to a New York reporter: "They have taken my home, my beautiful home, and my children from me because I have become an American and married an American husband. They have broken my heart. They said that I wished to take my boys from Germany that they might escape military service. In my heart that was true, yes, but I am still their mother and my rights should be sacred."

The New York Tribune pays high tribute to Mr. Gerike, the conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, and from the notice of a recent concert we quote the following: "Mr. Gerike deserves as much immortality as the memory of all his hearers can give him for the lessons in pure musical beauty which are a part and parcel of every one of his concerts."

If rumor is to be believed New York is becoming jealous of Boston's world famous orchestra; and according to an article in Musical America, the great organist, John B. Rockefeller is interested in a new scheme, "the object of which is to wrest from Boston the supremacy given it" by this organization. In other words, there is a plan on foot for a new orchestra in New York.

Ask Your Own Doctor

If he tells you to take Ayer's Cherry Pectoral for your severe cough or bronchial trouble, then take it. If he has anything better, then take that. But we know what he will say; for doctors have used this cough medicine over 60 years.

"I have used Ayer's Cherry Pectoral for hard colds, bad coughs, and influenza. It has done the great good, and I believe it is the best cough medicine the world has for throat and lung troubles."—ELI C. STUART, Albany, Oregon.

York with a celebrated European conductor as its leader. This movement is regarded by those within the ring as an effort to rival Boston's proud possession.

Josef Hofmann, the pianist, was recently married to Mrs. Marie Eustis.

M. Tiersot, librarian of the National Conservatory in Paris has arrived in New York and is to lecture at Harvard before the Alliance Francaise, on Musical Art. Among other things he is reported to have made the statement that "Ragtime is the joke of the music. It has been taken up with a great deal of success, but not lasting."

Dudley Buck has gone to Europe for a long holiday. It has been rumored that he intends to make a permanent residence there, but this statement is contradicted.

Carl Reinecke, who is eighty-two years old, is to play in public at one of the Gewandhaus concerts, Leipzig, on the occasion of the Mozart celebration.

"The Musical Study Club of New York, composed of ladies, has become interested in the study of Indian music; and at its first meeting of the season a paper on this subject was read by Miss Lucia Bender. Miss Frye sang the Indian song, 'Silence Whispers.' Miss Vestler played the Wigwag Dance, and 'The Sun Dance' was played by Miss Linderhoel.

European musicians are preparing to celebrate the one hundred and fiftieth anniversary of Mozart's birth on January 27, 1906. At Vienna a performance of "Don Giovanni" is to be given, and at all the principal opera houses in the country the anniversary is to be commemorated in some manner.

Mme. Emma Eames is to appear in a concert in Philadelphia on Monday, Dec. 2, when she will be supported by Josef Hollman, cellist; Emilio de Gogorza, baritone; and Amherst Webber, pianist.

Friends of Mrs. Ridley are much gratified to learn of her success in Boston. With her deep love for music Mrs. Ridley possesses also a fine voice, an ambition for high attainments, a conscientious regard for detail and a capacity for hard work. These qualities supplemented by perfect physical health constitute an endowment possessed by comparatively few of the workers in the musical field, and should ensure Mrs. Ridley an enviable position.

Advance copies of piano compositions from the Oliver Ditson Co. are as follows: "Goldfish Mazurka," Carl Heine; "In Silk and Satin," Alletier; "Amarante," O'Neil; "My Love's Blue Eyes," Alletier; "Joyful Greeting," Espiloff; "Slumber Song," Alletier; "Court Beauties," Tracy; "Butterflies," Williams; "Valse," Charles Fonteyn; "Mammy," "Iris," R. Spaulding; "Stough-tongue," "The Fair Countess," Emma Sjogren. The "Iris" is written in a light tripping measure; "Butterflies" affords good practice in allegro vivace movement, and is at the same time melodious and comparatively few of the workers in the musical field, and should ensure Mrs. Ridley an enviable position.

Etta Ellmore has returned home from Lynn, Mass., in very poor health. Rev. Sydney Packard of Waldoboro, will preach at the Baptist church, Sunday Dec. 3d at 2 p. m.

Last Saturday evening, Acorn Grange conferred the 3d and 4th degree upon one candidate; two were elected to membership; and three applications for membership were received. Clam stew, doughnuts and coffee were served. It was voted to have a Christmas tree and entertainment Christmas night, also a mock trial Dec. 2, when B. W. Rivers will be tried for stealing a pig from C. J. Freeman. Theron Payson will be judge; our worthy master prosecuting attorney. Walter Grover has been retained by the defense. Some original law is promised, and every member of the order will be welcome. Sister Grace Maloney presided at the organ and W. S. Demuth assisted with his violin. A very pleasant evening was spent.

THE VALUE OF A TRADE MARK.

A trade mark is usually some one particular mark on goods to show their origin, but, as a matter of fact, any new, original quality, feature or characteristic of an article of manufacture, if widely made known through advertising, becomes valuable as a trade mark, and is protected by the courts, so that one article may have many "trade-marks" of its own. Thus, for example, in the case of Cascarets, Candy Cathartic, the name "Cascarets," the expression "Candy Cathartic," the peculiar shape and color of the box, the octagonal tablet, and the letters "C. C. C." on each tablet, all are expressive trade "marks" of that popular medicine, because they indicate their genuineness, distinguish them from imitations and have become universally known to the people.

THE THEATRES

Shepard's Moving Pictures Attraction at Opera House Thanksgiving Afternoon and Evening.

CHRISTMAS AFTERNOON.
Opening Christmas afternoon Prescelle will commence a three days' engagement in this city at Farwell opera house presenting his very clever performances of mind reading, etc. Prescelle will be remembered as doing the largest three days business last year at the Farwell of any popular priced attraction during the season. Prescelle has this year been packing the theatres in Bennington, Vt., Newport, N. H., Newport, R. I. and Nashua, N. H. There will be several new and taking features with the performances this year and we predict two S. R. O. houses for Christmas day.

THANKSGIVING DAY ATTRACTION.
Archie L. Shepherd's wonderful motion pictures will be the attraction at Farwell opera house on Thursday afternoon and evening (Thanksgiving day) and this year all new pictures will be the rule. No better attraction than these wonderful pictures could be booked for a holiday afternoon and evening. The afternoon performance will not commence until 3 o'clock, giving plenty of time for the Thanksgiving dinner. Doors open at 2.30. Evening performance at 8.15. Shepherd's motion pictures are considered the best in the world and the subjects thrown upon the screen include all the latest and most interesting happenings of the day that are pleasing to all classes of people and which makes Shepherd's so popular. The advance sale of seats for both performances opens tomorrow (Wednesday) morning at 9 o'clock. All seats reserved for both matinee and evening.

THE ROE COMEDY COMPANY.
The Roe Comedy Company, supporting Will J. Kennedy, will be seen at the Farwell opera house for a three night engagement early in December, presenting all royalty plays at popular prices. Mr. Kennedy is well known in Rockland having been here with this same company last year and the George M. Fenberg Stock two seasons ago.

BRITT-NELSON BOXING PICTURES.
As a special attraction Manager Crockett has arranged for the great Britt-Nelson boxing pictures for two nights at Farwell opera house, Friday and Saturday, Dec. 8-9. These are the original moving pictures of the Britt-Nelson championship August, 1904, under the personal direction of Lou M. Houseman.

DANIEL SULLY.
A powerful play, strong in dramatic quality and rich in comedy is what is promised the patrons of the Farwell opera house soon when Mr. Daniel Sully and his company will appear in the three-act comedy drama, "Our Pastor." In this play Mr. Sully is seen as Father Daly of Idaho, and his troubles in regulating the affairs of a rough Western community form the basis of an original and interesting story. The play is handsomely staged and is presented by a company of unusual merit.

LITTLE JOHNNY JONES.
Geo. M. Cohan brought "Little Johnny Jones" back to the New York theatre this week and started in just where he left off last August, by turning them away nightly. George, having certainly got the "dope" on the "Great White Isle." He says "Broadway is the best show town in America." It is, when his name is up, all right, all right.

"SAVED MY LIFE"
—That's what a prominent druggist said of Scott's Emulsion a short time ago. As a rule we don't use or refer to testimonials in addressing the public, but the above remark and similar expressions are made so often in connection with Scott's Emulsion that they are worthy of occasional note. From infancy to old age Scott's Emulsion offers a reliable means of remedying improper and weak development, restoring lost flesh and vitality, and repairing waste. The action of Scott's Emulsion is no more of a secret than the composition of the Emulsion itself. What it does it does through nourishment—the kind of nourishment that cannot be obtained in ordinary food. No system is too weak or delicate to retain Scott's Emulsion and gather good from it.
